FORLORN HOPES FOR M-2 SPEED RESCUE EFFORT

Admiralty Says Chance of Saving Crew Is Fast Fading.

WAVES AGAIN BALK EFFORTS OF DIVERS

Subsurface Raps and Object Struck by Sweep Give Impetus to Hunt.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Portland, England., Jan. 28 (A.P.). The sunken submarine M-2, holding threescore men within her steel hulk, still rolled at the bottom of the English Channel tonight and the British admiralty announced the possibility of saving any lives was "almost beyond hope."

Desperate efforts were being made, nevertheless, to reach an object 18 fathoms below the surface of Portsmouth, which naval officials believed might be the ill-fated craft.

The battle against choppy seas and swirling tides was spurred on by the reception of "subsurface signals" on the hydrophone of the destroyer Thruster and by a great patch of oil discovered by the destroyer Sabre.

Rescue workers were aware, however, that there was not a moment to be wasted. The official estimate of from 48 to 56 hours in which the crew could remain alive expired about 6:30 o'clock tonight, but with exceptionally favorable circumstances it was believed they might have a few hours more.

Lifting Cylinders Arrive.

A number of vessels clustered about the site of the newest discovery and four great lifting cylinders, known to navy men as "camels," were towed out from Portland in case the submarine was located. The moment it is definitely ascertained that the object below it the missing craft, efforts will begin to raise it.

Three divers were sent down during the afternoon and early evening. One failed to reach bottom, but the others succeeded only to be swept off their feet by a strong tidal current. The water was jerky and they could see only a few feet in front of them. Other divers were ready to take their places.

The discovery of the obstruction about which efforts were centered came as a consequence of information to the admiralty. The master of the coastal vessel Tynesider was brought from the French port gravel lines to point out the spot where he watched a submarine dive stern first Tuesday forenoon, approximately the time the M-2 disappeared.

Sweep Encounters Object.

At the same time the master of the schooner Crown of Denmark put into port and related that he had seen strange, bright flares at almost the same spot early Tuesday evening, followed by explosions like the bark of big guns.

Although the two observations could not be thoroughly explained, authorities recognize the possibility they had been searching the wrong part of the channel and operations were shifted 7 miles to the west.

Several seaplanes and vessels were dispatched to that locality and after a short search a sweep operated by two small vessels caught on an object. The sweep was pulled up a moment later—bent and with paint clinging to it.

The Thruster reestablished contact with the object and then heard the first mysterious taps on its hydrophone. Although not translatable in any code, they were described as sounding as if they might have been made by a man tapping with a hammer on the side of a ship's hulk.

Oil Appears on Surface.

The Sabre came alongside and slipped out her stern anchor. A minute or so later bubbles of oil began to appear on the water and within a short time the waves were covered by a huge oil patch. Officers ventured the opinion that the sub-

Court Orders Freedom For Grandi's Annoyer

Philadelphia, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—The State Superior Court today reversed the conviction of Orlando Spartago, who was sentenced to two years' imprisonment on a charge of annoying Dino Grandi, Italian Foreign Minister, and ordered that the young man be given his freedom.

An opinion, handed down by Judge William Keller, held that Spartago had been convicted on insufficient evidence. Spartago was convicted on a charge of inciting to riot and was sentenced by Judge Harry S. McDevitt, of Common Pleas Court. The charge was made after the youth jumped to the running board of an automobile bearing the foreign minister in this city on November 20, and shouted at him.

Paris, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—United States Ambassador Edge announced today that he was going home for a short visit on February 4 but would return to his post here before the end of the month.

The announcement created much interest in view of reports which have been circulating here that Mr. Edge is under consideration as successor to Gen. Dawes as Ambassador to Great Britain.

Delegates and alternates to the national convention will be elected at the primary, where the ticket selected today will be opposed by the two other Republican factions in North Dakota, the progressives and nonpartisan group.

RAIL WORKERS AGREE TO PAY CUT FOR YEAR

Will Accept 10 Per Cent Slash, With Old Scale Returned Later.

Chicago, Jan. 28 (U.P.).—The country's union railroad workers have decided at last to accept voluntarily a 10 per cent reduction in their wages for one year.

Officially their decision remains secret until tomorrow morning when they will place their decision before a committee of nine railroad presidents. Unofficially they all admitted tonight that they accepted smaller salaries because no other course remained open.

The union leaders stipulated that present salary rates be reestablished at the end of the twelve months and insisted that the railroads wait another year before making any attempt to reduce wages again.

Willard Beams Happily.

Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and spokesman for the presidents' committee, celebrated his seventy-second birthday by beaming happily upon the messenger bearing him word of the union's agreement.

David O. Robertson, union chairman, remained noncommittal to the end. He said:

"Our 20 organizations have reported. I can't discuss what we will tell the presidents tomorrow other than to say that we have reached a single, unified stand."

The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, however, issued a statement in which they said although their members were not receiving large enough salaries now, they would accept the wage reductions as the "best settlement possible."

Agreement Unanimous.

Inasmuch as Robertson said the agreement was unanimous and inasmuch as the trainmen's union is one of the "Big Four" labor organizations, the stand that the 1,900,000 railway workers have taken is obvious.

Said the trainmen's resolution:

"Whereas the monthly earnings now made by the classes represented by the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen are far below the amount requisite to permit them to live in comfort and decency * * * it is the sentiment of this brotherhood

HOOVER SPURS SENATE'S HELP TO DEPOSITORS

Banking Law Revision Is Made Next Step in Relief Work.

U. S. RECONSTRUCTION CORPORATION STARTS

Dawes and Other Leaders Confirmed; Applications for Loans Studied.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday worked out an agreement with Senate leaders to make a combination emergency and permanent banking revision and depositors' aid bill the next order of business.

This understanding was reached as the Senate put the titanic Reconstruction Corporation into operation with confirmation of the men who will guide its activities.

The Glass measure, providing far-reaching changes in the banking laws as well as the organization of a corporation to speed payments to depositors in closed banks, is to be the basis of the legislation.

Many modifications are desired by the administration in some of the complex features of the Glass bill. The President obtained an understanding whereby Senators Glass (Democrat), Virginia, its author, and Walcott (Republican), Connecticut, will represent the banking committee in working out the changes with Treasury and Federal Reserve experts.

Three-Point Relief Plan.

Efforts will be made in these negotiations to blend with the Glass measure the administration proposal sponsored by Senator Thomas (Republican), Idaho, to set up a separate emergency Government corporation for relieving depositors in closed banks.

The proposed combination legislation encompasses three points in the nonpartisan relief program urged by the President—providing relief for depositors; making new classes of paper eligible for rediscount by the Federal Reserve in times of emergency; and giving bank depositors new safeguards.

It is believed the measure can be whipped into shape for presentation to the Senate next week and leaders are ready to give it precedence. Senator Glass, a former Secretary of the Treasury, has been working on the legislation with a banking subcommittee for more than a year.

Oversubscription Announced.

Last night Secretary Mellon announced oversubscription of $296,000,000 on Treasury certificates which will furnish the first money to launch the Reconstruction Corporation.

He said that for the announced offering of $350,000,000 of certificates, with $290,000,000 to be devoted to the corporation, subscriptions totaled $646,091,500.

Of the total, $395,943,500 was for the six-month certificates which will bear 3½ per cent interest and $250,148,000 for the 3¾ per cent, twelve-month certificates.

Amounts Accepted.

The Treasury accepted approximately $228,000,000 of the 3½ per cent subscriptions and $145,000,000 of the others.

Of the $363,000,000 which will be derived from the sale of the certificates, which will be dated February 1, $50,000,000 will be used to retire a like amount of Treasury bills falling due on that date. This may leave as much as $310,000,000 which can be devoted to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, enabling it to begin making loans next week.

Details of the allotment of the certificates by Federal Reserve districts are to be announced later.

Overriding an almost single-handed fight by Blaine, of Wisconsin, the Senate yesterday, by an overwhelming

4 U. S. DESTROYERS RUSH TO SHANGHAI AS JAPANESE BOMB AND TAKE CITY; GOVERNMENTS ACTING TO SAVE CHINA

World Opinion Is Working Desperately to Halt Japan's Moves.

ANGLO-U. S. ACTION IS BEING CONSIDERED

Telephone Conversations to Brnig Tokyo to Terms Held by Officials.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Forces of government and world opinion in London, Geneva and Washington were desperately working last night to prevent the dismemberment of modern China by Japan. The Tokyo government has practically completed taking over of the Chinese section of Shanghai and preparations are already under way to extend the Japanese military control to Nanking and Hankow, still further up the Yangtze River.

Transatlantic telephone conversations were held between Secretary of State Stimson and the American Charge d'Affaires in London, Ray Atherton, while the same anxiety was apparent in the British Embassy, where similar conversations were in progress between Sir Ronald Lindsay and his foreign office.

Before the fait accompli of Japanese occupation of Chinese Shanghai, the United States and Great Britain are deliberating the following undertakings as the best way to bring the Japanese general staff to terms and prevent throwing modern China back into the chaotic condition which prevailed there immediately after the Boxer uprising.

Review Courses of Action.

In his conference with the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, at Woodley Wednesday night, Secretary Stimson reviewed the following courses of action which may be decided on by this Government and Great Britain: naval demonstration in Chinese waters by the combined British and American Asiatic fleets, joint action by British and American financiers to prevent all credit facilities to Japanese firms or agents, and a final step, the gravest to be invoked only after all other conciliatory moves have failed, the breaking off of diplomatic relations.

Four American destroyers at Manila were ordered to steam under forced draft for Shanghai, and left early today.

These naval reinforcements were augmented by a very significant troop movement which created considerable comment in American Army circles. It was, however, impossible to confirm this report in official quarters, but authoritative sources revealed that sailing orders were issued from the West Coast for the Thirtieth Infantry, one motorized field battery of 75s, one regiment of Marines and one pack battery. These military forces were to sail on any Army transport for Hawaii in connection with the naval maneuvers planned last spring. It was however, regarded as an interesting coincidence in view of joint American-British action in Shanghai.

League May Make Move.

In addition to the negotiations between London and Washington, the League of Nations at Geneva has been intently following the rapidly changing Chinese situation and is expected to make another, and perhaps final, step to prevent the Japanese domination of China.

From all the negotiations, however, France has been a significant dissenter and the opinion has been definitely gaining credence that

Former Representative To Seek Old Seat

Marion, Ohio, Jan. 28. (A.P.).—John A. Key, Democrat, former representative from the old Thirteenth District, today announced his candidacy for the congressional seat now held by Grant E. Mouser, jr., in the Eighth District.

Key, who served two terms from the Thirteenth District, which included most of the present Eighth District, was chairman of the pensions committee during the administration of President Wilson.

Arms Parley Fund Again Is Reduced

Senate Slashes Expenses for U. S. Delegation to $300,000.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate yesterday cut from $390,000 to $300,000 the amount appropriated by the House for expenses of the United States delegation to the Geneva Disarmament Conference. The measure now goes back to the House.

Originally the Senate approved an appropriation of $450,000, the House reducing this by $60,000.

In recommending the reduction to $300,000 Senator Jones (Republican), Washington, chairman of the appropriations committee, said that body felt $53,000 a month would be sufficient and that accordingly the amount recommended would "carry the delegation at least six months."

Above is a map of Shanghai, showing how the city is split up into sections for the varied nationalities. Chapei, the district seized by the Japanese, is north of Soochow Creek and west of the northern district of the international settlement. The station of the Shanghai-Nanking Railway, scene of bitter fighting, is northwest of the German, American and Japanese consulates, just outside the international settlement. The map shows the location of the various United States Marine units in the city.

NIPPONESE MARINES ROUT CHINA'S FORCE

Sanguinary Fighting in Area Near Foreign Concesison Takes Heavy Toll.

(Associated Press.)

Japan seized Shanghai in a fierce attack today that cut down Chinese defenders in the narrow streets and bombed them from the air.

The United States sent four destroyers toward China while American Consul General Cunningham expressed indignation at the Japanese action.

Japanese marines occupied Chinese military headquarters in the Chapei native section after nine of their number had been killed and 110 wounded. The Chinese casualties, probably enormous, were uncounted.

Mayor Wu Teh-Chen, who had been served by the Japanese officials with demands for an end to anti-Japanese disorders and boycotts, protested to the Japanese consul general that the use of armed force was "unwarranted and illegal."

Machine-Like Precision.

The Japanese sweep into Shanghai, although it encountered bitter resistance at some points, was carried on with machine precision.

The heaviest fighting occurred at the very edge of the barbed-wire boundary of the international settlement, on the other side of which United States marines were on patrol duty with orders to allow no one to cross the line.

Japanese headquarters announced early this morning every objective in Shanghai had been taken, but heavy fighting still was going on. Japanese aviators started bombing the Chapei Chinese section of the city after the announcement was made.

Many Chinese civilians were believed to have been killed by the machine-gun fire of the advance wave of Japanese troops that swept down the little streets in the Chinese area.

Sees U. S. Unduly Alarmed.

The Japanese government, in reply to a request of Secretary of State Stimson for an explanaton of its intentions in regard to Shanghai, answered that Tokyo did not mean to aggravate the situation. This answer was made before Shanghai was occupied.

A Tokyo foreign office spokesman, commenting on press dispatches telling of the American attitude, said the United States seemed "unduly alarmed."

Action in Manchuria accompanied action in Shanghai by the Japanese military.

Troops were expected in Harbin today and it was understood that when they arrived they would take over the Chinese Eastern Railroad, jointly owned by Russia and China.

The Chinese government at Nanking suffered a shake-up just before the fall of Shanghai. Wang Chen-Wei, a follower of former President Chiang Kai-Shek, was made premier. This was interpreted as a victory for the opponents of a strong policy against Japan.

League Council Takes Action.

In Geneva the League of Nations Council adopted a resolution without the Chinese or Japanese delegates participating, which declared that no treaty settlement imposed by Japan's invasion of China would be recognized.

(Copyright, 1932.)

Shanghai, China (Friday), Jan. 29. Japanese marines battled the Chinese defenders of Shanghai today, broke down their resistance in a series of bloody battles in the narrow cobbled streets, and precipitated the most critical international complications of the Sino-Japanese conflict by occupying the native city.

After the occupation had been effected, Japanese airplanes, flying in high circles, dropped bombs on the Chapei native section. Fire started in the little mud-brick and wood houses of the area, and the Chinese populace was in consternation.

The bitterest fighting of the occupation, which was carried on with

BILLS FOR U. S. COAL BOARD ARE ASSAILED

Committee of Association Will Meet Today to Draw Reply to Proposals.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Widespread opposition to Congressional proposals for the stabilization of the bituminous industry under a dictatorial Federal Coal Commission developed yesterday following a demand in the House for immediate creation of the projected new controlling agency.

Senator James J. Davis and Representative Clyde Kelly (Republicans), of Pennsylvania, have introduced identic bills for the commission, which would have authority to license every operating bituminous mine in the country.

As outlined in the House yesterday by Representative Kelly, the commission would have authority to approve regional base prices determined upon by the independent operators. It would be empowered also to supervise consolidations, mergers, and cooperative marketing through gigantic sales agencies—a practice now prohibited by the antitrust laws.

The bituminous industry has been seeking for several years a formula which would permit consolidations and joint sales agencies without the risk of antitrust prosecution. But the operators are unwilling to accept complete Government control as the price for such an arrangement. The experience of every industry which has accepted Government control dictates against further extension of industrial regulation by Federal commissions, the coal men declare.

About a year ago some of the major factors in the bituminous industry, including representative producers in both the Northern and Southern fields, undertook jointly to work out a consolidated selling agency system which would not contravene the antitrust laws.

Senator Shortridge Is Operated Upon

Veteran California Republican Reported to Be "Resting Easily."

(Associated Press.)

Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, of California, late yesterday underwent an operation to remove an obstruction in his digestive system and was described later by his physicians as having withstood it well.

The veteran California Republican, who is in his seventy-first year, went to the hospital about a week ago. The operation was decided upon suddenly yesterday, it was announced. A bulletin issued last night by his physician, Dr. R. Massie Page, said:

"Senator Shortridge underwent an operation this afternoon for partial obstruction of the bowels. He stood the operation well and is resting easily tonight."

Youth Arrested in Theft Of Mrs. Whitney's Purse

Winchester, Va., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Loudoun County authorities are holding Ernest Grayson, 20-year-old colored youth, on a charge of stealing a pocketbook belonging to Mrs. John Hay Whitney.

Police said the youth hid the pocketbook in the mountains near Llangollen, Whitney estate, when he was about to be overtaken by Mrs. Whitney and two grooms who pursued on horseback. The youth refused to talk.

EDGE TELLS FRANCE TARIFF STEP UNFAIR

Protests Quota Reductions on Radio Imports From United States.

Paris, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—American Ambassador Walter E. Edge formally protested today against French quota restrictions on American importations as "unfair" and was told by Minister of Commerce Rollin that such measures were necessary.

The French minister assured the ambassador, however, that the French government would consider "as far as possible" the American representations, directed especially at the new quota reductions on radio imports.

Ambassador Edge told M. Rollin that by increasing the restrictions on American imports France was arousing public opinion in the United States to an extent which would be difficult to appease.

France had failed to consult American industries before drawing up the new regulations, although it apparently had entered into negotiations with industrialists of other nations, he added. For that reason, he said, he believed the methods employed were discriminatory.

The ambassador's call at the French ministry of commerce was made with diplomatic formality, Mr. Edge taking with him members of his staff. Afterward an offical note said M. Bol-

SHANGHAI ISSUE DUE TO MIXED POPULACE

U. S. Is One of Many Nations With Interests in City Taken by Japan.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The centuries have been scrambled in Shanghai, and so, too, have the world's nationalities.

In this ancient—and yet modern—city on the Whang Poo, now a battleground in the Japanese-Chinese war, one sees such paradoxical spectacles as rickshaws and limousines; sampans and yachts; old temples and new skyscrapers; narrow, filthy streets and broad, tree-lined boulevards, over which trod the nationals of a half hundred countries.

It is this—the presence in Shanghai of so many foreigners—that makes the Mikado's latest blazing gesture a critical problem in nearly every capital in the world.

It is the presence of 5,000 Americans—1,200 of them United States Marines, fortunately—that has put a crease in the brow of Secretary of State Stimson.

It is the presence of 9,000 Britishers—some of them fighting men, too—that probably has Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald pacing up and down at 10 Downing street.

Anxiety elsewhere in the world is caused by the presence in Shanghai of Frenchmen, Russians, Scandanavians, Portuguese, Spaniards, Swiss, Germans, Austrians, Brazilians, Dutchmen, Czechoslovakians, and so on through the ethnological scale.

So long as the fighting in this Sino-Japanese war was confined to desolate Manchuria, there did not seem much cause for concern. But now there is real fear that Shanghai—the "Paris of the Orient," as it is called because of its gay spirit—may become another Sarajevo.

Why the presence of so many Americans, so many Britishers, so many Frenchmen and so many other for-

Kiwanians Heartily Indorse Washington Essay Contest

Mrs. John F. Sippel, National President of General Federation of Women's Clubs, Also Approves Movement to Stimulate Interest.

Unanimously indorsing The Post Washington Essay Contest yesterday, the board of directors of the Kiwanis Club of Washington said: "Good citizenship is engendered by that feeling of love, patriotism and good will that is the foundation of the Government of the United States of America."

"We heartily commend and indorse the Essay Contest sponsored by The Washington Post for the youth of the District of Columbia and nearby Maryland and Virginia," the resolution of the club said.

Seldom has a newspaper contest excited the widespread interest that is exhibited in the Essay Contest. From prominent leaders in civic matters, heads of women's organizations, patriotic groups, and first citizens generally favorable comments have been received by The Post Essay Editor on the contest, which is to distribute $1,000 in cash prizes to writers of the best 500-word essays on George Washington in hand by March 14, when the contest closes.

Mrs. John F. Sippel, national president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, an organization numbering more than 3,000,000 American women throughout the country, yesterday also approved the contest.

"I have read carefully," Mrs. Sippel declared, "the provisions of the Post Washington Essay contest and feel that it is a most splendid project. The boys and girls entering essays in this contest are at the most impressionable ages and it seems that there could not be a better undertaking in which they might be engaged.

"May I remind the young contestants that in writing such essays one must be certain to be familiar with the subject. This is a first requisite.

"How fine it will be for these young folk to gain such a thorough acquaintance with the life of George Washington through their endeavors

Maryland Farmer Is Held In McBride Murder of 1922

Prince Georges County Authorities Charge Temple Biggs Knows Guilty Parties Who Killed and Robbed Rich Oil Man From Oklahoma.

A Maryland farmer was arrested yesterday in connection with the death, nearly ten years ago, of Barney McBride, rich Indian oil man whose body was found in a ditch near the farmer's home.

The man under arrest is Temple Biggs, of Camp Springs, Md., who was arrested at his home by Prince Georges County Sheriff W. C. Hopkins and Deputy Tom Garrison. He denied that he knew anything of the murder, but he is being held for investigation.

While they do not believe that Biggs was actually concerned in the murder, authorities think that he knows all the details and the names of those involved. They said that Biggs had been staying close to his home, several miles back in the woods, since the case was reopened several weeks ago.

At the time of his arrest yesterday, Biggs was free on bond of $500 on a charge of assault and battery on James Yantz. He was arrested on this charge Christmas Eve, asked for a jury trial and was released on bond. According to Sergt. A. W. Hepburn, who arrested him at this time, he is said to have struck Yantz with a chair. Last fall Biggs was arrested when a still was found on his property, but was released when tried in Police Court on this charge.

The case was reopened when a woman told authorities that Biggs had recited to her many details of the killing. Police are investigating a report that Biggs purchased a number of trucks shortly after McBride's body was found, and that some woman living nearby had worn a ring similar to that taken from McBride.

Biggs is married and has four young children.

McBride came to Washington in August, 1922, to lease to the Government rich oil lands which he owned in Oklahoma. Three days later his body was found, a gunny sack pulled over his battered head. A quantity of money he usually carried was missing, as well as his large diamond ring.

COAST GUARD AIDING FLOOD RESCUE WORK

Scores in Delta District Are Marooned as Levee Crumbles.

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Coast Guard boats raced through southwest Humphreys and northwestern Yazoo Counties in the Atchafalaya basin of the Mississippi today to rescue scores of persons marooned by breaks in the district levee, while in Arkansas much of the tension has been relieved in the flood sector.

The swollen Yazoo River burst through the Atchafalaya basin dike. Water is flowing over this 12-mile levee system at severa points as residents of Carter, in northwest Yazoo County, watched the water mount higher in their homes.

United States engineers are rushing 15,000 sacks for use by drainage district commissioners in efforts to rebuild the dike against the onrush of waters.

Three Rivers Falling.

Breaks in the Atchafalaya relieved pressure around Belzoni and has saved the Humphreys County seat from extensive damage.

The Tallahatchie, Yalobush and Yazoo Rivers from Greenwood, on the Yazoo, up are falling.

The Mississippi is falling at Memphis but is rising below Vicksburg.

Yazoo City, Miss., high on a hill, has been made the base for relief work among refugees.

A break in the Red River levee drove 300 families from their homes and marooned the town of Colfax, La., today. The homeless flocked into Colfax and are being cared for by the Red Cross and citizens.

Hundreds of acres in the vicinity of Fulton, Ark., were flooded late today after a levee break on the Red River. Several families were routed from their farms.

(Associated Press.)

Army engineers yesterday were given authority to review and, if necessary, recommend changes in the Mississippi flood-control law.

The House flood-control committee adopted unanimously a resolution proposed by Chairman Wilson directing an extensive examination of the Jadwin plan by Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of Army Engineers.

Brown was ordered to report back on the earliest practical date whether "changes or modifications should be made in relation to the project and its final execution."

Wilson announced he had assurances of prompt action.

The examination of the plan will be directed chiefly to the feasibility of increasing the flow of the Atchafalaya River by dredging in the lower section of the basin beginning at the levee line. It also will include the practicability of straightening the Mississippi River between the Arkansas and Red Rivers.

3 "Fur Salesmen" Told to Leave City

Haled Into Court and Win Freedom After Making Promise.

A trio of those suave young gentlemen who offer surreptitiously to sell "smuggled fur" coats and various other fur articles of apparel at ridiculously small prices are hot-footing it away from Washington today, thanks to Assistant United States Attorney Michael F. Keogh.

Many complaints about the activities of the fur peddlers have been received, and yesterday three of them, all operating in one group, were rounded up by police and taken into court.

After admitting that most of the Russian furs they were selling were imported from Newark, N. J., the three were told that they could take their choice between being prosecuted for obtaining money under false pretenses, or leaving Washington with a promise that they would never come back. They chose the latter.

Fireman Is Injured Breaking Into Blaze

A fireman was cut about the hand and wrist last night as he broke in a third story window of a house at 39 Quincy place northwest to get at the seat of a blaze of undetermined origin.

The family of T. H. Private Ray Arnold Wren, 36 years old, of Ballston, Va., attached to No. 4 truck company, is the injured fireman. He was treated by a private physician and relieved from duty.

Glass-Breaking Beggar Gets 30 Days in Jail

A militant food beggar yesterday was sent to jail for 30 days when he proved unable to pay a fine of $50 which Judge Gus A. Schuldt assessed him on a charge of destroying private property.

Herman Goldstein, proprietor of a small grocery store at 1633 Twelfth street northwest, said that a man, who identified himself as William Lawrimore, of no fixed address, came to his store, asked for food, and when he was refused, kicked his foot through a large plate glass door.

4 U. S. DESTROYERS RUSH TO SHANGHAI

the same machine-like precision displayed by the Japanese when they pushed their Chinese enemies out of the cities of Manchuria, took place at the very edge of the international settlement.

Foreign Troops on Patrol.

Within the barbed-wire boundaries of the settlement patrolled United States marines and the military forces of other nations backed by artillery and tanks. Advancing along the boundaries, the Japanese attempted to break through these defense lines but were refused passage.

The civilian male population of the foreign city was mobilized, armed with rifles and put on guard in the business district. No clashes between Japanese troops and the soldiers of any nation except China were reported, but Shanghai was tense with apprehension.

Several hours after the first wave of the Japanese advance moved through the tiny streets of the native city, Chinese reinforcements were rushed up for a counter-attack of major proportions.

Two armored trains brought these reinforcements and they were deployed and hurriedly put into action in an effort to stem the inexorable Japanese advance.

Aerial Bombing Brief.

It was then that the Japanese airplanes were brought into play. The planes flew high but the roar of their motors was deafening to observers in the international settlement. Among the aircraft were three from the carrier Notoro.

The bombing activity was brief. But after a pause of a little more than an hour, it was resumed again at the first trace of the foggy, rainy dawn. In the interim planes had circled over Chapei, dropping flares.

A drizzle of rain made visibility low, but the glare of burning Chapei was plain enough. At least 500,000 Chinese live in the tortuous warrens of the district, and it was reported fire was sweeping through it unhindered.

The explanation of the air activity was reported to be unexpected reverses suffered by the Japanese. Reinforcements were ordered into the district by the Japanese command.

Just before the planes went out the second time to thump their bombs on Chapei, Japanese headquarters announced its losses were nine killed and 110 wounded. No figures were available on Chinese losses, but they were reported to be heavy. Many civilians were believed to have been killed.

4,000 Chinese Opposed.

It was estimated by the Japanese that 4,000 Chinese opposed their 2,000 marines at the beginning of the fighting, but considerable reinforcements were moved in by the Chinese. About 24,000 Chinese troops were believed to be in the immediate vicinity of Shanghai.

The semidaylight of 7 a. m. revealed four Japanese airplanes flying menacingly over the foreign settlements as well as the Chapei district.

Half an hour later another plane joined them. They confined their activities for the most part to scouting, although occasionally they dropped a bomb.

Meanwhile the flames spread. As they swept through the lightly constructed houses of the native quarter they could be seen for miles around. Several sections of Chapei were burning to the accompaniment of the rattle of machine guns and occasional bursts of rifle fire.

It was the first time Shanghai had undergone an air raid. Back in 1927, when Marshal Chiang Kai-Shek's troops menaced the city, fliers scouted overhead but no bombs were dropped.

Two Waves of Invaders.

The occupation was effected by two waves of invaders, totaling 2,000 men. The first started exactly at midnight from positions outside the Chinese sections of Hongkew and Chapei. Many of the men were crowded into motortrucks for the push into the territory of China.

They operated efficiently. As they moved along the boundaries of the Chapei section they dropped a strong detachment at the head of every alleyway. These detachments in obedience to a signal, moved as one to the interior of Chapei, brushing back the lines the Chinese raised against them.

The movement caught the Chinese between the boundaries of the international settlement and the oncoming Japanese line. When the pincher action began to be felt, the Chinese put up vicious resistance. Reinforcements were rushed to them. But the outcome appeared certain. There seemed no possibility that the Chinese would be able to provide any more than a temporary barrier against what promised to be a greater penetration into the Chinese territory than the mere occupation of Shanghai.

One of the Japanese tricks was to plunge the whole Chinese city into darkness. All street lights were shot out—a measure taken, a Japanese officer explained, to protect the advancing soldiers from the rifles of Chinese snipers.

37 Ships Protect Troops.

Heads down, rifles at the ready, with bayonets fixed, the Japanese line swept onward in the darkness through the little alleys of the Chinese section toward the open country beyond.

The advance was carried on under the protection of the guns of 37 ships of war lying off the Shanghai bund in the Whangpo. Simultaneously the Japanese shelled Woosung, the fort 18 miles from Shanghai which commands the Whangpo where it flows into the China Sea. After the shelling a Japanese detachment landed there.

In those sections of the Chinese part of Shanghai where no resistance was made, Japanese residents crowded the streets to cheer their soldiers and Japanese photographers took pictures of the troop movements.

But for the Chinese it was a night of terror. They remained in their houses, hiding behind barricades as the streets outside were swept by the machine gun fire of the advance guard. It seemed certain that many civilians were killed.

Three hours and a half after the first wave of the attackers got into action Japanese headquarters announced that virtually every position outlined in their original plan had been seized. But heavy fighting still was going on.

Most Critical Complication.

A detachment of marines was dispatched along the railroad leading from Shanghai to Fort Woosung. The Japanese plan seemed to be to seize the road in order to prevent Chinese troop movements.

The long-threatened occupation of Shanghai, declared by the Japanese to have been necessary to stop anti-Japanese agitators, was looked upon as the most critical complication of the Manchurian conflict because of the foreign interests in this port. It was undertaken after the Japanese had served two ultimatums on the Chinese municipal authorities.

The original ultimatum expired at 6 p. m. yesterday. Two hours before that deadline Japanese Consul General Murai presented another one, demanding the removal of all Chinese armed forces stationed about the city, the immediate release of all Japanese goods seized during the boycott and the freeing of Chinese merchants held as prisoners by the anti-Japanese associations.

The original ultimatum, calling for the suppression of anti-Japanese societies, already had been accepted by the Chinese authorities when the new demands came. This acceptance was contained in a communication to the consul general from Mayor Wu Ten-chen, but the consul replied by remarking that it remained for the Chinese to make effective their promises.

"If the promises are not carried out," he said, "the Japanese will act without further warning."

Volunteer Corps Called Out.

Meanwhile male residents of the International Settlements had taken steps to protect their homes and families. The Volunteer Corps of the settlement was called out under arms to augment the mobilized troops of the treaty powers.

The famous race course became the military center of the community. It was the assembly place for the regular troops, steel helmeted and carrying field equipment. Cavalry units and tanks were included among them.

The United States Marines were posted along the Avenue Haig and Soochow Creek. Troops from the standing Japanese detachments on duty in the settlement took over the protection of Honkew and the Yangtze districts north of Shanghai. The British were sent to the Hungiao area west of the city, and other strategic posts were assigned to the French.

$10,000 Bail Set In Holdup of Store

Two Held Identified by Victims as Pair Who Fled With $44.

Walter Jordan, 31 years old, of 3215 O street northwest, and James F. Donovan, 33 years old, of 2140 N street northwest, were ordered held for the grand jury on bonds of $10,000 yesterday when they were arraigned in Police Court on a charge of holding up the Liberty Food Shop, 906 Fourteenth street northwest, where $44 was taken from the cash register.

Gus Paris, the owner, and Sam Abraham, a clerk, identified them as the pair that came into the store and at the point of a pistol forced them to give up the money in the cash register.

Police arrested Donovan later on in the same night when he went into a store at 1259 Twenty-third street northwest, where he held up Mrs. Lena Katz, and upon leaving that place forced a cab, in which Jordan was waiting, to drive him away. The cab driver, Edward C. Dugan, stopped his machine when he saw a policeman, and Donovan was caught after a chase. Jordan was arrested the next day.

Lieut. Van Winkle Is Cleared of Libel

Gets Directed Verdict in $100,000 Case of Ethel Clawans.

Justice Jesse C. Adkins yesterday directed a verdict in favor of Lieut. Mina C. Van Winkle, in charge of the Women's Bureau of the Police Department, who had been sued by Ethel Clawans on a $100,000 libel charge.

Holding, after brief argument by Robert V. Lynch, assistant corporation counsel, that the statements which Lieut. Van Winkle was charged with having placed on the back of a card that committed Miss Clawans to Gallinger Hospital were privileged, in that it was official business, Judge Adkins held that there should be a directed verdict in favor of Mrs. Van Winkle.

The incident occurred on November 14, 1928, when Miss Clawans was under arrest for investigation. Notice of appeal was served in court shortly after Justice Adkins made his ruling.

Annulment Is Sought In Marlboro Court

Charging that his wife was already married to another man when he married her in 1929, William W. Sullivan yesterday filed suit in Circuit Court in Marlboro for annulment of his wedding to Betty L. Sullivan, alias Betty L. McKinley, alias Ella Catherine Burrows.

Sullivan's bill, filed through Attorney Arthur Keefer, states that six weeks after he married the woman, he learned that she had been married in 1924 to Norman Burrows. He says this earlier marriage was never terminated or dissolved, but that she posed as being unmarried. He calls this a "deliberate fraud."

Woman Prisoner Bites Hand of Police Guard

Private W. T. O'Brien, of the First Precinct Station, was bitten on the hand yesterday afternoon as he was loading a young woman into a patrol wagon at the station for a trip to the Woman's Bureau.

The woman, who gave her name as Violet Dabbs, 18 years old, of 487 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, had been booked on a charge of vagrancy.

Washington Chapter, of the Sigma Nu Alumni Association, will hold its annual election of officers Monday night at the Sigma Nu House, 1601 R street northwest.

Chester Wellon, 9 years old, was bruised about his legs yesterday when he was knocked down by an automobile in front of his home, 726 Sixth street northwest. The automobile which struck him was operated by Richard Johnson, 27 years old, of 734 Fairmont street northwest. The boy was treated at Homeopathic Hospital and later returned home.

Late in the day the rescue flotilla abandoned its investigation of the first object discovered Tuesday night and operations were concentrated on the new site.

Those wives and relatives who had not collapsed spent another anxious day at Shoresides, Portland, Weymouth, Gosport and Portsmouth awaiting news. Most of them refused to give up hope and greeted news of the day's developments with the first smiles in many hours.

Heavy seas and tidal currents late tonight forced divers to give up their attempt to find the submarine until early tomorrow, when low tide will be due again. Crews of the weight-lifting lighters were sent into Portland to get a few hours' sleep.

LIFETIME FURNITURE

Then came ELIZABETH - -

Up to about the seventeenth century in England there was little furniture that any of us would want in our homes today. It was all too crude and uncomfortable. Kings were so busy fighting for control of Europe and for power over the church that there was little time left for sitting at home.

Then came Elizabeth, who kept her country out of wars and church squabbles. She hired great artists and traveled with her whole court in train from one great country estate to another. Naturally interest turned to the home and furnishings became more livable.

LEAGUE WILL IGNORE NEW ASIATIC PACTS

Geneva, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—While reports of fighting at Shanghai were reaching Geneva, twelve members of the Council of the League of Nations, in secret session tonight, adopted a declaration that the league will not recognize any Sino-Japanese agreement imposed by Japan's military invasion.

This position in effect ranged the council alongside the United States. The declaration was adopted at a meeting not attended by the Japanese and Chinese delegates.

The councilmen took their stand upon the famous Article X of the covenant of the league, which aroused such heated controversy in America twelve years ago.

The declaration will be made public—according to plans announced tonight—at a council session tomorrow by Chairman Joseph Paul-Boncour, of France. It may not be submitted in advance to Naotake Sato and Dr. W. W. Yen, the Japanese and Chinese delegates.

The chief effect of the declaration was said to be moral. It was understood to refer definitely to the note sent recently by Secretary of State Stimson to Japan and China, and to associate the council members with the principles of Col. Stimson's conclusions.

In effect, it was said, the United States and the league were saying to Japan: "We warn you that we will not permit you to enjoy the fruits of military aggression."

U. S. Is Still Sending Wheat China Bought

Portland, Oreg., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—The movmeent of the Farm Board's 15,000,000 bushels of wheat and flour to China continues, despite the fighting at Shanghai.

Henry W. Collins, regional director of the Farmers National Grain Corporation, admitted today, however, he is somewhat disturbed by developments. The motor ship Childar left Portland this morning for Shanghai with 100,000 bushels of wheat and 47,500 barrels of flour, part of the supply sold by the Farm Board to the Chinese government.

Woman's Bid in Bridge Ends in Divorce Case

Minneapolis, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—A seven-spade bridge bid without the ace led to a divorce for Mrs. William Blomberg today.

Mrs. Blomberg, granted a decree, told the judge she bid with her husband as partner. She was set. When he found she lacked the spade ace he reached across the table and struck her in the face, she testified. She charged cruel and inhuman treatment.

Shanghai Is 13 Hours Ahead of Washington

While Americans rub their eyes this morning and read of war activities in the Orient, it is near bedtime for citizens of China and Japan, at least for those not in the range of any bullets that may be flying.

Eyewitness Narrates Fall Of Shanghai to Japanese

Correspondent Describes Relentless Advance of Marines Toward Main Objective, North Railway Station; Chinese Resistance Was Stubborn.

Editor's note: Following is a dispatch from the United Press Correspondent at Shanghai, who followed Japanese marines in their advance against Chinese troops in the native section. He gives a vivid eyewitness account of the fighting, as the Japanese attacked their main objective, the north railway station.

By H. R. EKINS.

(Copyright, 1932, by the United Press.)

Chapei District, Shanghai, China, Friday, Jan. 29 (U.P.).—The battle front of warfare between China and Japan spread through the Chapei district of the native city of Shanghai today as Japanese marines and aviators drove back Chinese troops.

In the wake of rumbling motor lorries and armored cars, I penetrated the fighting zone shortly before daylight, when the most intense stage of the Japanese attack was expected.

I left the northern boundary of the international settlement after the Japanese marines, on foot, in motor lorries and in armored cars, had entered the Chapei district, battling their way toward the burning North Railroad station, which the Chinese stubbornly defended.

Fires were breaking out on all sides and the sky was red. Overhead could be heard the Japanese planes roaring through the darkness and in front were frequent bursts of machine-gun fire from windows and rooftops.

Correspondent Feels Bayonets.

Japanese were cutting telephone wire as they advanced under the fire of Chinese snipers and little groups of soldiers.

There were virtually no civilians on the streets and the houses were dark. Japanese soldiers were on patrol as the marines advanced and they halted all civilians. I was frequently stopped by a marine who jabbed his bayonet against me, demanding credentials.

All of the implements of modern warfare except heavy artillery were in action in the heart of China's greatest commercial city.

I followed one group of Japanese marines, which moved from the waterfront through the heart of the settlement to Chapei. Ahead flames were shooting up from the railroad station, which was bombed by aviators, and from many houses where the fighting spread. The sky, which had been impenetrably dark, was lighted by the flames which sprang up in half a dozen places to the northward.

To our right, far down at the mouth of the Whampoo River, there were flashes of big guns, operating from Japanese gunboats against the Chinese Woosung forts.

Chinese Gunmen Sought.

The Chinese failed to evacuate Chapei as quickly as the Japanese had expected. Under cover of darkness, they resisted almost every step between a point not far north of the settlement boundary and the railroad station. Repeatedly the flash of a sniper's gun would break the darkness. Then there would be a rattle of rifle and machine gun fire and Japanese troops would rush into the district, relentlessly pushing back the defenders.

The entire Hongkew section, adjoining the Chapei area, was in the control of Japanese who searched every passerby. They said they were attempting to apprehend members of the organization known as "The Black-Gowned Gunmen," a Chinese terroristic society.

Fighting extended from points near the settlement boundary to the far boundaries of the Hongkew district, which was originally intended for a United States concession. There were several extended clashes on Paoshan road and along the Szechuen district, near Magnolia road. Stray bullets fell on the Hongkew fire station, which is within the settlement, and on the Shanghai Mainichi newspaper offices, a Japanese plant in the settlement.

The heavy guards in the settlement, however, had halted any influx of refugees and the French and other foreign areas were quiet.

Japanese private automobiles with insignia on the top side indicated preparations for an air raid by Japanese planes had been made some time ago.

SHANGHAI'S MIXED POPULACE ADDS TO ISSUE ON JAPAN'S ACT

eigners in Shanghai? The answer, of course, is trade.

Shanghai is the principal port and the principal distributing center of China. In 1930, the United States sent $317,779,249 worth of products to Shanghai.

Receives U. S. Cotton.

The principal export from this country to Shanghai is raw cotton. The value of this in 1930 was $55,206,404. Cotton textiles sent to Shanghai in 1930 were valued at $28,997,256; cigars and cigarettes at $19,565,589; metals and minerals at $18,924,903; and machinery and automobiles at $16,841,828.

The best-selling American car in Shanghai is the Buick. Next comes the Ford, and after it the Chevrolet.

The American Consul at Shanghai, in making his report, didn't single out motion pictures. To judge from Shanghai newspapers and magazines, however, these constitute an important item. In the various publications there are advertisements and articles about Greta Garbo, Garry Cooper and other screen idols that look and sound very much like those that appear in this country.

$115,000,000 U. S. Property.

American property in Shanghai is valued at about $115,000,000. This property includes two magnificent American clubs and a number of American banks and office buildings. Among the principal firms located in the city are the Standard Oil Co., the Singer Sewing Machine Co., the Dollar Steamship Line, the American Express Co., the Chase National Bank and the National City Bank.

To understand the set-up in the so-called "International Settlement" in Shanghai one must go back to 1840 or thereabouts, when a foreigner traded at Shanghai at his own risk.

In those days the Chinese regarded Americans, Britishers and other outsiders as "foreign devils," and they refused to live with them.

Early Concessions.

In 1842, after a great opium war, Great Britain, under the terms of the treaty of Nanking, was given the right to establish a British colony in a swamp near the water front of Shanghai. A little later the United States was accorded the same right. However, it, too, was allotted an area in the swamp.

Ultimately the French also got a concession, one bordering on the British concession.

In the nearly 100 years that have elapsed, all three concessions have been extended. Meantime, however, the British and American areas have been merged, and something like twenty other nationalities have been allowed in.

Today this particular part of the international settlement looks like a woman's slipper on the map. The French concession, which has always remained independent, is shaped like a heart at top and then tapers off like an ice cream box.

Council Government.

Both concessions are governed much like an American town might be governed. There is a council, in which all nationalities or at least the dominant nationalities, are represented. Also, in addition to the American, British and French professional troops, there is a volunteer defense corps made up of men of nearly all races. This corps is expected to do much in the event of a real outbreak between Japanese and Chinese within the international settlement.

The Chinese part of the city is sprawled out in every direction away from the international settlement.

In the beginning, the idea was that the American area would be limited to Americans, the British to citizens of Great Britain, and the French to citizens of France.

Sanctuary of China.

At one time, many years ago—so it is said—there used to be a sign up on the Bund, the water front street in Shanghai, which read, "No Dogs or Chinese."

In any event, the international settlement now harbors more Chinese and Japanese than it does Occidentals. In a sense, Shanghai is the great sanctuary of China. Thither have gone rich Chinese from all parts of the country to invest or hoard their money. It is the one place in China that is regarded as a safe place.

As the National Geographic Society puts it:

"Although the 'settlements' were first laid out for foreigners alone, the Chinese have come over to them in great numbers to enjoy the protection and advantages of foreign rule. Rich Chinese often retire to the new sections to enjoy their wealth in safety, or to spend it in reckless dissipation."

Clash Is Danger.

But in addition to these rich Chinese, thousands of poor Chinese have invaded the international settlements. So, too, have thousands of poor Japanese.

The great danger is that the two—the Chinese and the Japanese—may clash, and that the authorities in the international settlement may not be able to cope with the situation.

In that event, Japanese troops might invade the settlement, thus endangering the lives of Americans and others. Under international law Japan would be authorized to do this.

Alliance Is Goal.

That is why negotiations are now going on between the United States and Great Britain looking toward a military alliance in the settlement that would squelch any disorders.

The American Marines in Shanghai constitute a crack outfit, a remnant of the brigade that glorified itself at Belleau Wood. It is the Fourth Regiment—"San Diego's Own"—and it is in command of a hard-boiled old-timer, Col. Richard S. Hooker.

Whatever the State Department may think, the Marines here in town feel that so long as Hooker and the Fourth are on the job, the "situation is well in hand."

GOVERNMENTS ACT TO HALT JAPANESE ADVANCE IN CHINA

strong sympathy for the Japanese position in China has been given the Tokyo government by the French Ambassador at Tokyo, the Count de Martel. Lack of French support in withholding Japanese commercial or financial credits by Wall street and the City of London would nullify any Anglo-American repressive action at this time.

French interest in the Far East has increased proportionately with the growth of disorder in British possessions there and the present absorption of Manchuria and perhaps other parts of China by Japan would enable France to form an advantageous understanding with such a potential Far Eastern power as Japan.

Situation Is Complicated.

The Manchurian difficulty has even more complex implications in its own sphere due to the sudden action of the Japanese government in extending military movements to the City of Harbin, that anomalous metropolis of the Orient where East is West and where West is East. Harbin has been governed jointly by Soviet Russia, despite the presence in the city of hundreds of White Russians, the refugees of Wrangel's and Kolchak's forces, and by the Chinese government.

Outrages against Japanese residents forced the hand of Gen. Honjo and he has dispatched to the city 1,000 crack Japanese troops from his headquarters at Mukden. For the first time since the Manchurian outbreaks, Japan and Soviet Russia will find themselves in direct contact. The far-flung range of Japanese influence stretching from the mouth of the Yangtze at Shanghai to the rim of inner Mongolia may suddenly encounter its first real resistance with the armed encounter of Japanese and Soviet Russian troops at Harbin.

The American Consul General, George C. Hanson, has been anxiously watching all developments and up to a late hour last night no dispatches had been received from him, although there were grave doubts that the breaking of the telegraph line between Harbin and the outer world had interfered with his reports.

Likened to 1927 Crisis.

The situation existent in Shanghai at the moment was likened by several diplomats to the same crisis that had developed in 1927, the date of the last joint British and American action in China. At that time the British government ordered some 6,500 marines and soldiers from Hong Kong to northern China and the United States contributed 4,000. The extent of American occupation was, however, so restricted that the British military forces were forced to bear the brunt of the movement. It is believed that some such concern has been voiced in the councils of the British cabinet with regard to the nature and extent of Anglo-American cooperation in Shanghai.

The timidity of certain elements in the British cabinet prevailed on the ideas of Premier Ramsay MacDonald and Stanley Baldwin, the leader of the Conservatives, who were unanimous in urging British corroboratory action in the sending of a similar note to Secretary Stimson's pronunciamento of January 7. In his note of that date the American Secretary of State announced to both China and Japan that the United States would insist on the maintenance of the open door in any eventuality in China or its integral part, Manchuria. Failure of the British government to align itself with the Stimson statement is believed to have created the encouragement necessary to Japanese pretensions for the move against Shanghai.

Japanese Ambassador Debuchi arrived here last night from Havana, where he presented his letters of credence to President Machado. In his absence, Sotomatsu Kato, the charge d'affaires, has been acting for the Japanese government.

BILLS SEEKING FEDERAL COAL COMMISSION ARE ATTACKED

United States, was engaged to guide the operators through the legal technicalities of the plan. This scheme, if it can be applied successfully, would provide a stabilization method quite as effective as might be expected from a Federal commission, according to C. B. Huntress, executive secretary of the National Coal Association.

Mr. Huntress participated in a meeting of Southern operators at Cincinnati early this week in which it was agreed to launch the Donovan plan in the high volatile fields of Kentucky and West Virginia at once.

The Department of Justice has declined to give the projected plan of the operators its advance approval, but the Cincinnati meeting determined to go ahead with the joint sales arrangement. The industry is ready to test the legality of the new sales method to the Supreme Court, should it be assailed by the Justice Department.

The Government relations committee of the National Coal Association will meet at the Hotel Biltmore, in New York, today to frame its formal answer to the proposals for national regulation as embodied in the Davis-Kelly bill.

Commission of 5 Members.

As originally presented the bill would set up a Federal coal commission of five members, whose salary would be fixed at $10,000 a year. Besides allocating production quotas to the various competing fields, the commission would have general supervisory authority over wage agreements, mechanization, shipments, sales methods, discounts and grading. So complete would this authority be, say the coal operators, that effective competition would be virtually eliminated from the industry.

Instead of bureaucratic regulation, the industry suggests—particularly in the Donovan plan—that the operators be permitted to set their own house in order. This they are ready to do as soon as the threat of anti-trust prosecutions are removed.

The distressing plight of the bituminous industry during the last decade is widely recognized, both in Congress and by leaders in the producing fields. Apparently there is general agreement upon the basic difficulties which need to be overcome before lasting stabilization may be achieved.

Must Be Eliminated.

Thousands of marginal mines—which can not sustain living wages—must be eliminated through consolidation of small operating companies. Mechanical mining, which has been vigorously resisted in the union fields by the organized mine workers, must be adopted to reduce production costs. Finally, distributing costs must be reduced by stabilizing production the year round, and through larger selling agencies which will permit the assignment to quotas according to the predetermined stabilization schedule.

Spokesmen for the operators declare all of these things can be accomplished legally, without sacrificing the public interest in low prices. They do not believe, however, that they can be accomplished merely by the establishment of another Government commission.

Col. Donovan, who was a White House dinner guest last night, is expected to attend today's coal conference in New York.

FORTESCUE COUNSEL AGAIN RAPS CHARGES

Three Navy Men Are to Be Tried by Court-Martial; 2 Ask Bail Today.

Honolulu, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—A second attack on the validity of the second degree murder indictment against Mrs. Granville Fortescue and three Navy men in the lynching of a Hawaiian charged with assaulting Mrs. Fortescue's daughter, was made by defense forces today.

At the same time there remained in the offing the possibility that the accused Navy men might be taken out of the jurisdiction of the civil courts and tried by court-martial. Barry S. Ulrich, special prosecutor, said this had been considered, but no definite move had been made.

The new attack was in the form of a supplementary motion to quash the indictment, being similar to a motion filed yesterday by defense attorneys charging Judge A. M. Cristy had coerced the grand jury into returning the indictments.

Special Legislation.

Official circles also discussed the possibility that Congress might be asked to enact special legislation transferring the case to the Federal courts. In Washington, Representative Chapman had indicated such legislation would be sought.

Two of the defendants, Mrs. Fortescue and her son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, are expected to seek bail at their arraignment in territorial court tomorrow.

The other two, Albert O. Jones and E. J. Lord, were said by attorneys to be without funds. They are enlisted men. All four have been held in custody of naval officers at Pearl Harbor since the abduction and slaying January 8 of Joseph Kahahawai, alleged attacker of Mrs. Massie, wife of the lieutenant, last September.

Attacked as Invalid.

The supplementary motion asserted the indictment was invalid because it did not represent the true findings of the grand jury.

Members of the investigating body, the motion said, informed Harry A. Franson, the foreman, last Friday they were ready to report a "no bill," but in appearing before Judge Cristy the foreman disregarded the instructions and told the judge the jury had nothing to report.

Judge Cristy, the motion said, thereupon stated he refused to accept the report. The jury recessed at midday, but later met and returned the indictment.

Gentlemen's Agreement.

The possibility of naval jurisdiction is predicated upon a "gentlemen's agreement" between naval authorities and territorial officials under which naval personnel accused of crimes not calling for the death penalty as maximum punishment may be tried by the Navy. The maximum punishment for second degree murder is 20 years to life imprisonment.

Ulrich stated, however, there was an appendage to the agreement making it subject to modification and also providing for civil trials for Navy men charged with crimes involving death or driving while intoxicated.

Gov. Pinchot Asks Bond Plan Support

Speaks in Minneapolis and Says His Idea Would Aid Employment.

Minneapolis, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania tonight asked the Central Northwest farmer to support his proposed $5,000,000,000 Federal bond issue for public works on the ground that it would make currency more plentiful and increase the value of farm products.

Besides aiding employment by providing jobs, Gov. Pinchot told farmers and conservationists brought together by the Hennepin County Republican Club that the program would better the farm market by providing new buying power and raising price levels.

He urged pegging or stabilization of price levels at higher levels, asserting "the duty of preventing another drop rests largely on the shoulders of the Federal Reserve Board." Gov. Pinchot refused to discuss presidential politics. He laughed broadly when Gov. Floyd B. Olson, Farmer-Laborite, asked him with a smile, "How is your campaign coming?"

Girl, Her Sweetheart Slain, To Testify Against Brother

Edwin H. B. Allen, 23 (upper right), goes to trial Monday charged with the slaying of Francis A. Donaldson 3d over Donaldson's attention to Rose Allen (left), sister of the accused. Miss Allen and her father, Horace Allen (below), will be among the chief witnesses.

Norristown, Pa., Jan. 28 (U.P.).—Rose Allen, 19-year-old debutante, turned against her family today to avenge the killing of her sweetheart.

The attractive society girl will be the State's star witness in its effort to send her brother, Edward H. B. Allen, to the electric chair for the murder of Francis A. Donaldson 3d.

Shortly after young Allen, a social registerite and steeplechase rider, had been indicted on a first-degree murder charge, and trial of the case had been set for next Monday, it was announced at the district attorney's office that Rose would testify against him.

Immediately after the killing, which occurred in the Allen family apartment last November, Rose said she would never forgive either her brother or her father, Horace Allen, for the death of her fiance.

Later she changed her mind and said that she would do everything in her power to aid Edward.

Today she walked into the courtroom where the grand jury hearing was in progress, red-eyed but stoical. She did not speak to her brother, nor did she deign a glance in the direction of her elderly father. She was questioned for 20 minutes, then was taken to the district attorney's office. Announcement of her stand in the case followed a few minutes later.

"She is still heartbroken over the death of Donaldson," said an attache of the prosecutor's office. "She still can not forgive her brother and father for his death."

The killing of young Donaldson nearly three months ago climaxed a series of disputes between the victim and Rose's father and brother.

Rose and Donaldson were in love. The Allens objected to the affair, but Rose defied her father and brother.

After the shooting, Horace Allen, the father, issued a statement declaring that Donaldson had taken Rose to an out-of-town hotel and betrayed her.

Eventually father and brother forbade Rose's seeing any more of Donaldson. She challenged them to enforce the edict. They told her, it is said, that she could either obey them or leave the Allen home.

So on the night of the tragedy Rose packed her clothes and went to a Philadelphia hotel. She telephoned Albert C. Lucas, a friend of Donaldson's. Lucas called Donaldson, and the two went to the hotel. They decided to go out to the Allen apartment and intercede for Rose.

In the argument which developed Donaldson is said to have struck young Allen in the face, and Edward, it is charged, shot his sister's sweetheart in the chest with a shotgun.

Lucas was one of the witnesses examined by the grand jury today.

Bill Would Fine Libelers of Dead

Measure Is Introduced in House by Friend of Harding.

(Associated Press.)

Legislation to prevent the transportation of any book or other written matter defamatory to the dead has been introduced by Representative Mouser (Republican), Ohio, a friend of the late President Harding.

Mouser is a member of the Marion, Ohio, law firm which successfully defended Charles A. Klunk in the libel suit brought last year by Nan Britton, author of "The President's Daughter." Klunk, who was tried on a charge of libel, was the author of a book, "The Answer to the President's Daughter."

The measure would impose a penalty of $1,000 fine and a year in jail, or both, to a person who knowingly transmits or attempts to transmit through the mails or in interstate or foreign commerce any writing, picture or device defamatory to a deceased person. It mentions no specific books.

Kean Gives Pledge Of Hoover Support

Senator at White House Tells of Plans for New Jersey.

(Associated Press.)

A pledge of support for President Hoover on the eve of the meeting of the New Jersey State Republican committee was given him yesterday by Senator Kean (Republican), New Jersey.

Kean said he had informed the Chief Executive the committee would meet in Trenton next week. Saying he personally was for the President, Kean added he could speak at this time only for himself.

It was his idea, he said, that the committee would not go on record as did the Ohio State committee recently as solidly backing the President, but would allow convention delegates to run on their own merits. The meeting, he said, also will take up the election of a national Republican committeeman and committee woman.

SENATE PARTY ROW OVER TARIFF LOOMS

G. O. P. Independents Line Up With Democrats for Revision.

(Associated Press.)

The first real interparty scrap of the session faced the Senate last night with old coalition forces consolidating behind the Democratic tariff bill, adversely reported yesterday by the finance committee.

The contest is expected to begin next week and to find administration Republicans lined up against the measure and a combination of Democrats and Republican Independents championing it.

The bill passed by the House revising the flexible provisions and calling for an international conference to lower trade barriers, was rewritten by Senate Democratic leaders before the committee acted yesterday. But this did not diminish regular Republican opposition.

A motion to report the revised measure favorably resulted in a 10-to-10 tie with Senator La Follette, Wisconsin Republican Independent, joining the nine Democratic committeemen.

To get the measure onto the floor, Senator Harrison, the committee's ranking Democrat, announced he would refrain from voting. Thus, he permitted the bill to go out with an adverse recommendation and without a record vote. It would have been 10 to 9 had the roll been called.

As rewritten by Harrison and other committee Democrats, the bill withdraws presidential power to make rate changes under the flexible clause and leaves Congress the sole judge of Tariff Commission recommendations.

It eliminated the House provision, sponsored by Representative LaGuardia (Republican), of New York, which would have permitted a commission proposal to take effect if Congress did not act adversely in 60 days.

It also restores the provision directing the President to negotiate reciprocal trade agreements with foreign nations. Leaves intact the international conference feature and provides for a nonpartisan tariff commission of seven members and a revised basis for determining differences in costs of production of domestic and similar foreign articles.

Representative Hawley, of Oregon, ranking Republican on the House ways and means committee, meanwhile introduced legislation designed to equalize tariff duties by making compensations for depreciation of foreign currencies.

He proposed that it would become effective upon passage and be operative until 1934.

(Associated Press.)

Legislation designed to equalize tariff duties by making compensations for depreciation of foreign currencies was introduced yesterday by Representative Hawley, of Oregon, ranking Republican on the House ways and means committee.

The legislation would prevent duties on imports to this country from being paid in the depreciated currencies of the 17 countries operating off the gold standard and would prohibit the dumping of their products on American shores at their values as fixed by the currencies not backed by the gold standard.

This group will analyze the statements made before the committee by Patman and Alexander Gregg, Mellon's representative, in 5 day hearings.

The committee also was directed to study testimony taken by tthe Senate finance committee in its investigation of the sale of foreign securities in this country.

Mellon has denied there was any relation between a credit extension to Colombia and the Barco concession obtained by an oil company in which he has a large interest.

CONGRESS FOREGOES RETROACTIVE TAXES

Administration Plans for Such Increases Balked by Both Parties.

(Associated Press.)

Democratic and Republican tax framers of the House yesterday definitely dumped overboard retroactive tax increases sponsored by the administration and opposed generally by business men.

At separate meetings both party membership of the ways and means committee adopted similar policies to be followed in formulating revenue-raising legislation, including the plan not to impose increased taxes on 1931 individual and corporate incomes.

Speaker Garner met with the fifteen Democrats, and Representative Snell, of New York, the Republican leader, conferred with the ten Republicans.

Both groups decided the new tax program to raise about $1,000,000,000 annually to balance the budget and maintain the credit of the United States should be a "nonpartisan governmental tax bill."

Chairman Collier said after the Democratic conference that it had been definitely determined that the "tax bill would not be retroactive," and that they agreed "the budget shall be balanced to maintain the credit of the United States."

"No rates, details or subjects for excise taxes were agreed upon," he added, in explaining the Democrats would sit with Republicans to draft the bill.

The committee will meet Monday to begin preparing the legislation. Tuesday hearings will be held on proposed taxes on electrical energy, household gas and imported petroleum.

The Republicans agreed a tax bill should be formed with a view to balancing the budget in the next two years. They said the bill should be nonpartisan and individual rates and details should be worked out by both parties.

Secretary Mellon and Undersecretary Mills, of the Treasury, who presented the administration's tax program to the committee at the outset of hearings three weeks ago, held that corporate and individual xes should be retroactive on 1931 incomes.

Meanwhile, attempts to balance the budget went forward in two other directions.

Considering proposals to merge the War and Navy Departments, the House expenditures committee heard Secretary Hurley voice vigorous opposition.

The Secretary of War asserted a new department, with one Cabinet member and Assistant Secretaries for War, Navy and Aviation, would be more unwieldly than the present setup. Secretary Adams, of the Navy, who also opposes the idea, will testify today.

In the Senate $90,000 was chopped from the expense account to be allowed American delegates to the Geneva Disarmament Conference. The State Department originally asked $450,000, the House cut it to $390,000 and the Senate sent it back to the House with a $300,000 maximum.

Senators Postpone Action On Proposed Oil Tariff

The Senate commerce committee yesterday postponed consideration of the Shortridge bill calling for tariffs on oil and gasoline pending receipt of reports on its request from interested Government departments.

The measure would provide for a rate of $1 a barrel on crude oil and 50 per cent ad valorem on by-products. It was favorably reported last session, but a conflict of opinion has arisen as to authority, since all tariff legislation must originate in the House.

The interested agencies were asked by the committee to submit their reports on the bill as soon as possible.

WAR-NAVY MERGER OPPOSED BY HURLEY

Tells Congress No Greater Economy or Efficiency Would Be Gained.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Hurley said yesterday that consolidation of the War and Navy Departments would neither "add to the efficiency of either nor be favorable for economy of operation."

"In my opinion, the consolidation of the Army and Navy departments in a department of national defense is inadvisable," he added.

Hurley was testifying on a proposal endorsed by House Democratic leaders, including Speaker Garner and Chairman Byrns, of the appropriations committee.

"The Army and Navy already are under a single command, the President," Hurley said.

"To displace the two present cabinet officers with one secretary for national defense and assistants you would be lengthening the line of command through other offices," he testified to the House expenditures committee.

"In order to obtain unity of command in the new organization you would create a more top-heavy organization than you now have.

"You would put the new secretary of national defense in the approximate position the President now has in regard to both departments."

The pending bills would provide that the new department be headed by a secretary for national defense with assistant secretaries for the army, navy, and aeronautics.

"Efficiency can be obtained and maintained under the present organization better than under that proposed," Hurley testified.

NAVAL PLANS THEFT CITED IN AKRON CASE

Head of Goodyear Zeppelin Corp. Asserts Accuser Dismissed for Cause.

(Associated Press.)

One of the two authors of a charge that the airship Akron might burst in midair because of hidden flaws was accused yesterday by his former employer of "stealing" plans of a naval vessel.

At the same time, naval experts joined Paul M. Litchfield, president of the Goodyear Zepplin Corporation, in denying before the House naval committee that there were any defects decreasing the ruggedness and safety of the ship.

Mr. Litchfield insisted M. B. Underwood, of Madisonville, Tenn., was not discharged because he criticized the craft, but because "we found him taking Government drawings of a naval vessel out of the shop and we thought that was sufficient to justify the discharge of any man."

Commander Ralph D. Meyerbacher, a naval officer who investigated the statements made by Underwood and E. C. McDonald, of Washington, D. C., said his understanding was that Mr. Underwood left the employ of the Goodyear company before he made the accusations.

Mr. Litchfield substantiated this, adding that Mr. McDonald stayed on until the Akron was completed last October, months after the investigation, and then "was laid off with 200 or 300 other men."

E. C. Davidson, of Mount Ida, Va., secretary of the International Association of Machinists, told the committee today he believed both men had lost their jobs after the Goodyear concern learned they were criticizing the construction of the airship.

Lieut. Karl Schmidt, a naval inspector on the Los Angeles when that ship was under construction in Germany, testified he believed the Akron had fewer defects. The Los Angeles has been flying more than seven years, longer than any other dirigible.

"Do you consider the Akron can stand more strain and is a safer ship than the Los Angeles?" Chairman Vinson asked.

"I do, sir," Schmidt replied.

DEMOCRATIC TARIFF BILL CALLED FLIMSY

Senator Smoot Says "There Is No Excuse for Opening Measure Now.

The Democratic tariff bill was described yesterday by Senator Reed Smoot, chairman of the Senate finance committee, "as a flimsy political gesture. There is no excuse for reopening the tariff issue at this time. No one can pretent that this measure is in any way vital to the welfare of the country. It is intended only to obscure the dismal realities of the Democratic tariff policy."

Senator Smoot's statement in part follows:

"The gesture of the Democratic party toward revising the tariff has simmered down to an attempt to destroy the flexible provisions and to involve the United States in foreign economic entanglements.

"The Harrison substit bill would require the Tariff Commission to report its findings under the flexible provision directly to Congress. Since Congress is in session only three months during short-session years and about ix or seven months in other years, the machinery for adjusting the tariff in accordance with changing conditions would be inoperative more than half he ime. Even with Congresss in session it would be virtually impossible to secure action on recommendations of the Commission.

Destruction of Commission.

"If this measure should become a law, the usefulness of the Tariff Commission as an agency for the adjustment of duties to meet changing conditions would be at an end. American industries in distress, because of undue foreign competition, would be frustrated by political controversy even after an expert commission had decided upon necessary relief duties. The Democatrc bill seeks to handicap the United States in this respect and freeze the tariff structure in its present form.

"There is no occasion for this assault upon the excellent work of the Tariff Commission and the President in keeping duties abreast of current conditions. The present flexible provision is working well.

"In spite of their vociferous denunciation of the tariff act, the Democrats sponsoring this current bill have put themselves in the position of opposing the alteration of existing rates through the flexible provision or otherwise.

Conferences on Tariff.

"That section of the Democratic bill which calls upon the President to 'initiate a movement for an international economic conference with a view to lowering excessive tariff duties' is a vicious snare intended to discredit the President. Such a conference could only arouse hopes in foreign nations that the American tariff would be reduced, without the slightest assurance that Congress would take any such action.

"History shows that the effect of internatoinal tariff conferences is to increase rather than lower duties, because most countries raise their imposts before entering negotiations so as to be in a better trading position.

"The Democratic plan of negotiating 'reciprocal trade agreements under a policy of mutual tariff concessions' lays down an obnoxious doctrine of favoring one class of producers against another. This provision is repugnant to the traditional American theory of tariffs, and Congress can not accept it without risking widespread discrimination against our own people.

"On the whole the Democratic bill is a flimsy political gesture. There is no excuse for reopening the tariff issue at this time. No one can pretend that this measure is in any way vital to the welfare of the country. It is intended only to obscure the dismal realities of the Democratic tariff policy."

Cycle of War Apparently Has Again Run Its Course

By JOHN J. DALY

ZERO hour comes back to the clock and the language, as Wilhelm Hohenzollern, the woodchopper of Doorn, observes his seventy-third birthday anniversary.

Both the world and the former kaiser are old enough to know better. Just the same, the dogs of war are barking on the banks of Shanghai Bay.

As fast as the world starts recovering from one war, another war begins, and all the world adopts a policy of watchful waiting.

It seems to be an old international custom. Why? Nobody knows! They blame it on human nature—poor old human nature that has so many sins to answer for.

* * * *

SOME day the peacemakers will inherit the land, but not until the nations rise to call them blessed and monuments are erected to buck privates instead of generals.

Of course, if war were outlawed, there would be no heroic verse, such as "Theirs not to reason why, theirs but to do or die, into the Valley of Death rode the Six Hundred." Pacifism has no song to compare with the heart-stirring strains of any good old battle cry that sends men into action. Adventure is what the human soul seeks, and not an Alice-sit-by-the-fire complacency, which probably explains why Japan and China would rather fight out their differences than patch up matters over a round table.

* * * *

WHATEVER they do, some day somebody like the woodchopper of Doorn will be pointed to as a horrible example.

The only time war is glorious is while it is being waged; unless, of course, it is a justifiable war—but so few are. Otherwise, war becomes merely a bad memory; and the world, trying to forget it, starts a new one.

The only excuse for it all seems to be that it reduces the ranks of the unemployed—and how!

IMPORTANT TAX DECISIONS.

Three important decisions with regard to the forthcoming tax increases have been reached by the Democrats of the ways and means committee. First, taxes imposed will not be retroactive. Incomes in 1931 will be taxable at the same rate as was paid last year. Second, the budget will be balanced. Third, Republican members of the committee will sit with the majority members in the rate-fixing sessions and the resultant bill will go before Congress as a nonpartisan measure.

The Democrats are to be commended for this straightforward action. It is apparent that the new law can not be enacted in time to apply it to 1931 incomes without much confusion and inconvenience. Furthermore, the wisdom of levying taxes on incomes of a year that has already passed into history is open to serious question. No one has anticipated higher taxes on last year's incomes. No one is prepared to pay more than the rate called for in the present law.

Business can now proceed with the assurance that the new rates will not become effective until taxes on profits in 1932 become payable in 1933. This decision gives both corporations and individuals a year to make arrangements for the higher levy. Taxes do not become so onerous when they are applied only to future transactions.

Chairman Collier did not say when he expects the budget to be balanced under the tax program now being formulated. It may be assumed, however, that the plan does not contemplate a complete balance next year. That would require levies more drastic than the people are prepared to meet. If the budget is substantially balanced by 1934, as contemplated by Secretary Mellon, there will be no occasion to challenge the adequacy of the tax program. If the House can bring about a balance before that date by economy in expenditures, without imposing exorbitant taxes, it will deserve a hearty vote of gratitude from the whole American people.

The invitation to Republican members to take part in fixing the tax rates is significant from the political standpoint. The Democratic leaders do not want to take full responsibility for writing these new taxes. They should not be required to do so. The question of raising Federal revenue is not political. Congress is faced with an actual condition which relegates political theories as to increasing taxes to the background. The two parties must stand together in their efforts to balance the budget with the least possible imposition upon the people.

FOREIGN LOANS.

In presenting his bill to create a foreign loan board Senator Johnson was doubtless actuated by a desire to prevent another swindle, such as those which international bankers have inflicted upon American investors. Apparently the senator feels that the situation calls for a remedy. Yet he has indicated that the bill may be radically changed before it comes to a vote, either in committee or on the Senate floor.

In its present form the Johnson bill would set up a foreign loan board composed of the Secretary of State, the Secretary of Commerce and the governor of the Federal Reserve Board. No Federal Reserve Bank or individual could make loans abroad without the sanction of this board. It would be required to investigate the financial condition of the borrower, the security offered, methods of finance used by any borrowing government and remedies available in case of default. In short, the board would have to pass upon the soundness and advisability of any foreign loan.

The immediate tendency of this measure would be to remove responsibility from the shoulders of the bankers. Banks would be tempted to pay no attention to the soundness of a proposed loan, because the Government could be blamed if the borrower should default.

In the minds of investors the approval of a Government board would be equivalent to a guarantee of foreign bonds. It is difficult to see how the Government could avoid moral responsibility for foreign securities floated with its express approval. Certainly, pressure would be brought upon the Government to collect defaulted bonds and a militant atmosphere would be created. In the end such an arrangement might result in strained international relations and widespread resentment among the people of each country involved.

Senator Johnson's second bill for dealing with this situation is obviously a step in the right direction. It would require international bankers to report to the Secretary of Commerce the terms, security and estimated profits of all foreign loans made by them. Publicity would result from these reports, and investors would have a chance to inform themselves before buying foreign bonds. The latter bill might serve to protect American investors without recourse to a foreign bond censorship.

Senator Johnson has been diligent in exposing this gigantic swindle. Both the bankers and the investing public have been chastened. It will be a long time before American money flows abroad as freely as it did from 1924 to 1929. But there is no reason to apply a cure that might prove more obnoxious than the disease. When the question is thoroughly thrashed out in committee publicity will doubtless be found to be a more satisfactory remedy than Federal censorship.

SACRIFICING THE FARMER.

Reciprocal trade agreements are in the limelight in both Great Britain and the United States. It is reported that Parliament will follow up its tariff act with a movement to secure preferential entry of British goods into foreign countries in return for similar concessions for raw materials and foodstuffs imported into Britain. In this way the MacDonald government will make a desperate effort to cut niches in the high tariff walls built up in Europe and in most American countries since the depression began.

Democrats in Congress are trying to pass a bill to authorize the President "to negotiate with foreign governments reciprocal trade agreements under a policy of mutual tariff concessions." That provision was cut out of the tariff bill passed by the House, but was reinserted in the measure reported adversely by the Senate finance committee. It is, however, repugnant to the American theory of the tariff, and doubtless will be eliminated from the bill on the Senate floor.

A policy of reciprocal tariff concessions may be wise for Great Britain, but it has no application to conditions in the United States. Britain lives on foreign trade. Its people need food and raw materials for manufacturing, and they must have a market for their finished products. Trade agreements can be easily arranged, therefore, with agricultural countries.

In the United States conditions are wholly different. This vast country is virtually an economic unit in itself. With the exception of a few products, such as coffee, silk, rubber and tea, America produces virtually everything that is essential to its existence. If Great Britain is able to wipe out the tariff barriers between her own market and such agricultural countries as the Netherlands and Argentina she will still lack many of the advantages that accrue from free trade within the 48 American States behind a tariff wall.

How could President Hoover negotiate mutual trade agreements without sacrificing one industry for the sake of another? Commodities that need no protection are now on the free list, and, therefore, do not enter into the picture. Would Texas or California be willing to forego a duty on olive oil to favor Italy, so that Italy would remove its duty on Detroit automobiles? No President would undertake to trade off protection for one section of the country to secure concessions for another. The entire theory of reciprocal tariff concessions becomes intolerable when applied to a country where virtually all industries thrive on tariff protection.

If such a policy should be put into effect it would be a direct slap at the farmer. The Smoot-Hawley act applies the protective policy to agriculture. Most of the protests that have been heard from foreign countries against this act are concerned with the agricultural schedule. Foreign industrial products have been shut out of the American market for so long that foreign industries have no hope of competing with American factories in their own market. Foreign importers seeking concessions in this country are chiefly dealers in farm products.

Do the Democrats intend to sacrifice the protection of American farmers for the privilege of selling more machinery and automobiles abroad? Such would be the inevitable course of "mutual tariff concessions." Agriculture would be sacrificed for the benefit of industry. There is enough hidden dynamite in this one clause of the Democratic tariff bill to arouse every farmer in the country to demand protection of his right to supply the American market from his own fields.

A LAND OF MILK AND MONEY.

A newspaper publisher who had turned farmer for three years, for a vacation, returned to his paper with an entirely new vision of the complex farming problem in this country, and with definite ideas as to what business can do to help the farmer help himself. The interesting story is told by Frederick E. Murphy, of the Minneapolis Tribune. He tells what Minnesota has done—a State in which the farmers, since 1911, have increased their income by 61 per cent, while the general farm income of the country decreased 1.03 per cent.

Last year disclosed how Minnesota farmers adjusted their production in the interest of greater profit. Putting agriculture on a paying basis required three things—overcoming the surplus question, eliminating waste and increasing efficiency, and increasing sales. Minnesota decided that the job was not one for Government agencies; that the prosperity of agriculture meant prosperity for all; and business men of the cities organized to cooperate in building up a sound, prosperous and stable agriculture.

The Tribune was a leader in the movement which in a decade has witnessed a wonderful farm development in that great Northwestern State, demonstrating that the best form of farm relief is "good farming with good live stock." Minnesota believes today that while Congress and legislatures may pass laws to help the farmer help himself, it is the farmer himself, aided by the business men of the community, who will solve the farm problem. Minnesota is the greatest wheat-milling State. Its wheat crop in 1929 was worth $21,000,000 at $1 a bushel; but it raised potatoes worth nearly $26,000,000, and its corn crop reached a value of over $96,000,000. The total of field crops, besides wheat, was valued at $293,000,000.

How did Minnesota market these field crops? The farmer-editor explains that they were transformed into butter, and beef, pork and lamb chops, milk, cream and wool. Cheap wheat fed to chickens resulted in an egg and poultry crop worth $80,000,000, or nearly three times more than the wheat crop would have brought as grain. Minnesota's 1,500,000 dairy cows produced in a year foods, butter, cheese, milk, buttermilk, ice cream and veal that sold for $200,000,000.

The Minnesota farmer, in a word, has shaken off the curse of one-crop farming which subjected him to the violent fluctuations inevitably connected with unregulated production of raw products. He is turning his raw materials into finished farm products and has secured comparative stability for his industry and his prices. The Minnesota farmer is no longer merely a wheat farmer or a corn farmer. By producing a variety of finished products he spreads the risk over many enterprises, maintains soil fertility, provides all-year work for his hired help, lives well himself and puts money in the bank.

JAYHAWKER DAY.

Probably no State in the Union is more frequently mentioned than Kansas. It occupies the geographical center of the United States. Frequently in its history of seven years as a Territory and 70 years as a State it has occupied the center of the national stage, dating from the bloody days of the early '60s, grasshopper relief, and a reputation for cyclones. But jokes about Kansas have rather lost their point. Discarding most of its political vagaries along with its efforts to grow only wheat and corn, Kansas has become too prosperous and its life too commonplace to excite the world-wide comment that was evoked during its frontier days.

Today in various parts of the Nation from New York to California Kansas Day Clubs will meet to celebrate the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the organization and to toast the native State of the members. Washington residents from the Jayhawker State are meeting as usual tonight for their annual dinner and reunion. Kansas also celebrates the distinction of providing the Vice President, and is always proud to honor Charles Curtis.

Kansas, while still preeminently an agricultural State, has long since ceased to depend exclusively upon its two great grain crops, though it still leads the world in their production. Diversified farming and live stock raising have added immensely to the wealth of the State, and its manufacturing enterprises and mineral resources—coal, oil, lead, zinc, salt—combine to yield an annual income of nearly $2,000,000,000.

Kansas in literacy tests stands at the head of the Nation, with illiteracy among native-born whites amounting to only one-half of 1 per cent, while for the entire population, including foreign-born whites and colored, the ratio is only about 1½ per cent. If the 10,000 students in the State University and the Agricultural College are a criterion, the percentage will not decrease. Kansas prosperity is demonstrated by half a million automobiles. With less than four persons to a car every resident of the State could ride at once.

Congress is hopeful that our two traction lines can get together. Why can't the House and Senate?

THE COUNTRY STORE

From the Louisville Courier Journal.

The country general store still flourishes with its mingled odor of leather, hardware and comestibles. The motor bus and rural free delivery have not put it out of business.

Probably it has not been left untouched by the evolution of the village. The circular whip rack, the festoons of horse collars and stock of single-trees do not figure so conspicuously as they once did in the annual turnover. The proprietor has taken the agency for numerous household labor-saving devices, the candy is wrapped in cellophane and the inventory no longer includes the communal cracker barrel as a moral liability, properly chargeable on the books of the Recording Angel.

The store may have lost its character as an institution. Modern methods of stock display would encroach upon the whittling arena, where the round, unpolished stove, chairs and conveniently arranged targets of sawdust boxes furnished a village forum. It must be hard on the ancients who love to linger there of a winter evening; but the R. F. D., radio, traveling library, automobile and movies within a reasonable distance have introduced distracting diversions.

Nevertheless, general stores have resisted innovation better than independent city retailers have, and they perform a large and useful service in the distribution of farm produce, according to the census report. Their business remains in the front rank, behind only department stores, the groceries and motor vehicle sales and service establishments. The 87,683 general stores reported sales of $2,000,000,000 in 1929. That is 4 per cent of the Nation's total. The percentage varies, of course. In such densely populated States as New York, Massachusetts and New Jersey general store sales fell to 1 per cent; in Nebraska they amounted to 9 per cent; in North Dakota, 12, and in Mississippi, 18.

And what, after all, is the imposing department store but an offspring of the country general store moved to town?

JUST FOLKS

THE LITTLE SICK GIRL.

The little sick child doesn't get in the way
Or bring in the neighboring children to play.
The house is as still as a church on a Monday,
And though 'tis a week day it seems just like Sunday.
For everything's neat
And her gay little feet
Aren't tracking the parlor with mud from the street.

The little sick child isn't racing about;
It seems like a year since we last heard her shout.
Without interruption, to talk now we're able.
There's no one at meals to spill milk on the table.
From morning till night
Everything is just right,
And yet in perfection we find no delight.

It doesn't take long when a little one's ill
To weary of rooms that are tidy and still.
The day quickly comes when you'd give all your gold for
The racket and noise which so often you scold for.
For that obstinate spell
And that clamorous yell
And that trouble she makes are the signs that she's well.

Everybody Would Cheat at Cards If Nobody Despised Cheaters

By ROBERT QUILLEN

As a citizen of a free land, you share responsibility for every wrong that is done.

You are more responsible than the policeman, the sheriff or the judge.

Your opinion is public opinion, and public opinion is the final law.

In a free land, law is the will of the people expressed in statutes. But it does not follow that every statute has the force of law. If a statute does not express the will of the people it has neither authority nor effect. And the will of the people has the effect of law, even though it is unsupported by statute.

That is a truth frequently forgotten. Because all statutory laws are made by legislators who represent the people, there is a tendency to mistake the servant for the master and assume that any statute made by a legislative body is law.

But words printed on paper have no force in themselves, and a law is law in name only unless it expresses the will of the people.

There was a time when thieves were hanged in England. If severity of punishment could make a law effective, surely this put an end to thieving! But, no; the law had little effect. The people were starving. They had no choice but to beg or steal. Public opinion excused theft, and the law of public opinion was stronger than the king's law.

Mere written law was powerless to stop the practice of dueling, but when the public learned to scorn and ridicule the duelist, private executions went out of fashion.

Any behavior or practice or custom, whether divorce or fisticuffs or drunkenness or banditry, will end without benefit of legislation when the people frown upon it, or continue in spite of prohibitory laws so long as those who engage in it are commonly regarded as respectable citizens.

Let 90 per cent of America's citizens despise and loathe the bribed official as they now despise and loathe the sex pervert and there will be an end of bribery.

Let them recoil in unaffected disgust and horror from every corrupt, cowardly, wasteful or treacherous official and there will be an end of bad government.

Snakes multiply in India, where public opinion holds them sacred; they must hide to live in America because everybody hates them.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

A Tip to Democrats.

New York Times.

Now that the Republican national convention is expected to run smoothly on an engineering schedule, political reports, rumors and guesses are concentrated upon the Democratic. Those wise in the dark ways and vain tricks of politicians are agreed that the main effort just now is to prevent this, that or the other candidate from getting the nomination. We are told of deep intrigues and skillful alliances which will succeed in "stopping Roosevelt." Thereupon the Roosevelt forces will proceed to "stop" former Gov. Smith or Mr. Baker or Owen D. Young. Just at present, therefore, it would seem as if the great work of the Democratic national convention was to be negative—preventing somebody instead of promoting somebody.

It will be a serious miscalculation for the Democratic convention to assume that "any Democrat can be elected this year," and so pass by the men of outstanding merit and appeal. No matter what may be said, or what recent political indications may have been, the Democrats can not too early get it into their heads that they have a formidable job on hand in electing a President this year. They will require their best brains and finest leadership if they are to win. After all the "stopping" is done, the work of wise choosing will have to begin.

Kansas City Star.

The great lesson suggested by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, as described by a member of the Star's staff in a dispatch from Washington this morning, is that America has within itself all the resources needed for a vast measure of recovery. This country is linked up with Europe, financially and commercially, in many ways. It needs Europe's trade. But what it needs more than anything else just now is confidence in itself, a definite conviction that it can go ahead courageously in restoring its business to a normal basis. That confidence the finance corporation is designed to establish. Already there is evidence of growing faith that this soundly conceived plan will do the work. America's period of hesitation is over. The country has prepared itself to launch out boldly with an enterprising program of financial and industrial rehabilitation. It is an inspiring, a heartening, endeavor.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Increased Drunkenness Among Women Held to Be Fruit of Nineteenth Amendment.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A United Press dispatch from London says: "The consumption of liquor in Palestine is on the increase. According to the annual report of the native races and the liquor traffic united committee, the number of liquor licenses also has increased. Drinking, the report declared, has become a fashion among the young men, and is looked upon as a necessity to manhood. It is not uncommon to witness a drunkard swaying to and fro in the streets of Jerusalem."

The dispatch was kind enough to refrain from charging this to the effect of the eighteenth amendment in the United States.

Arthur Brisbane quotes a veteran railway conductor as stating that he never saw a drunken woman on a train before prohibition, but now he sees them plentifully. But this does not prove that drunkenness is the fault of the eighteenth amendment. Rather, it is a fruit of the nineteenth amendment.

The "setting free" of the sex has brought real freedom to countless multitudes who have greatly profited thereby. Unfortunately, some women and girls are so silly that they think they must imitate silly men by getting drunk and doing other disgraceful, unmanly deeds to prove their freedom.

When you extend larger freedom to any class it always happens that while some profit thereby, others abuse their freedom to their own hurt.

Some of the Work Performed by Rural Carriers—Puts People in Touch With the World.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial in The Post of January 27, favoring reduction of salaries of rural mail carriers, excites me. I live in New Jersey on such a route, two miles and a half from a postoffice, and I do not own a car. There must be thousands of people in the United States situated even more remotely than I am.

The mail carrier brings our mail once a day, and also brings postage stamps and other postoffice supplies. He takes and brings money orders (foreign and domestic) for us to sign, and either brings the order the next day for us to inclose in a letter, or does that service for us. He sees to registration of outgoing mail; he takes and brings parcel post articles, and is our medium of contact with the outside world. He does travel in a car, nowadays, as once on foot, or horseback, or in a horsedrawn vehicle, but he is out in all sorts of weather. I think I am correct in saying he is obliged to supply his own car and keep it in repair. I hope the effort to cut down rural carriers' salaries will fail.

MISS ALICE DINSMOOR.

Hideous, Modern Monstrosities in Painting, Poetry and Music.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With all optimism and hopefulness for the best one may reasonably ask whether the restless tendency of modern art is toward a higher elevation. Have we reached a greater serenity and sweep of emotional values in literature since the time of the Greek philosophers and poets, 2,000 years ago? Have more impressive works in sculpture arisen since the time of Phideas and Michael Angelo? Does technic in painting, with crushed-in faces, idiocy of expression, bodies distorted, compare with that of the old masters, strong in idealism, through sane treatment of line, color, contrasts

Does modern verse, in its freedom and daring, give the pleasure to be drawn from the undulating lyricism of the poems of Keats, Shelley, Verlaine, Baudelaire? Has music, since Beethoven and composers near to him, grown as a spiritual force and an element of beauty to be cherished?

It would hardly seem so.

The creators of great art of all periods reached down to a profound strata of consciousness. The modern artist touches lightly and more superficially, from which is evolved so frequently the grotesque, the bizarre, the fantastic.

Change of technique in art is epochal. Sometimes the change is gentle to the new generation. Seldom has it been so violent, wild, unlovely as at the present time. And not least, music suffers from such iconoclasm.

At a recent concert of the Philadelphia orchestra one composition was listed "The Soviet Iron Foundry." The title will suggest the noise produced. It was sound in violence. The purpose of music will hardly seem to function under these conditions. Another portion of the program had the fantastic title of "Ballet of Chickens in Their Shells." Here the mind wandered helplessly between the thought of how it could be done and the value of such a subject as an aesthetic stimulation.

Smoot's Spizzerinktums Cause of Uneasiness—What Is This New Peril?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Senator Smoot springs a new one on the general public when he says the State, War and Navy Building is full of "spizzerinktums." The senator should be a bit more explicit and give us a clear idea of this new peril. For all we know a "spizzerinktum" might be a cross between a thing-a-ma-bob and a geegaw.

If the "spizzerinktums" are something of an eyesore the Government might hire several score laborers to grapple with and remove them. Of course this crew would have to work under the personal supervision of the senator from Utah, and I don't mean Borah. Smoot would have to act as foreman in order to spot the lurking spizzerinktums for the workmen.

COMMERCIAL CREDIT PLAN IS CONSIDERED

Richs Companies May Extend $500,000,000 in Promisory Notes.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

New York, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—A group of prominent industrialists are considering a plan by which large corporations rich in cash may act to extend some $500,000,000 in commercial credit, which in turn may theoretically be used as a basis for some $5,000,000,000 in credit and bolster commodity prices.

This plan, the Associated Press learned today, envisages the payment for commodities purchased by the rich corporations by 60 or 90 day promissory notes rather than cash. The corporations would leave their cash on deposit with their banks. The sellers who received the rich corporation's notes could discount them at their banks and the banks could in turn rediscount them at the Federal Reserve.

Legal Backing for Currency.

Such notes would in turn be used as legal backing for currency, much of which now has virtually a full gold backing even though it is perfectly legal, under the Federal reserve act, to use 60 per cent of commercial notes.

This gold is now partly sterile and some industrialists fear that the amount of eligible commercial notes will decline tending to absorb part of the balance of free gold which the Federal Reserve system now possesses, in excess of requirements.

In other words, this free gold, amounting to about $500,000,000, together with $901,000,000 now being used for full gold backing, could be used more effectively if more commercial paper were made available. A Federal Reserve note requires only 40 per cent gold backing and 60 per cent commercial paper.

Huge Cash Reserves.

Many large corporations have huge cash reserves. General Motors had on December 31, for instance, roughly, $204,000,000, as compared with $179,000,000 a year previously. If such corporations choose, they may easily do business with some term promissory notes, and thus provide the basis for the issue of more currency.

In quarters close to the Federal Reserve it was stated that banks in most localities are already well provided with large supplies of commercial paper, and that there is far from any shortage in the aggregate.

Persons interested in the plan, however, believe that injection of more prime commercial paper into the credit structure would result in more rediscounting at the Federal Reserve, and thus expand the amount of credit in use, as well as the currency base. They feel that this would tend to halt liquidation of securities, give a better tone to the markets generally, including commodities, and act as a restorative of confidence.

Might Provide Basis.

If the corporations provide $500,000,000 worth of promissory notes, and these notes are in turn rediscounted at the Federal Reserve Bank, under the workings of the reserve system, economists explain, it might provide a basis for a theoretical maximum of ten times that amount, or $5,000,000,000 in credit.

The plan coincided with the plea of Ogden L. Mills, Undersecretary of the Treasury, who, Tuesday, urged the bankers to halt their selling of securities and their calling of loans. The banks have been forced to such actionbecause of the lack of good borrowers and the necessity of obtaining cash. The plan contemplates the obviating of this difficulty through providing good borrowers and replenishing the supply of prime commercial paper on the basis of which the Nation's business and banking is largely done in normal times.

Incendiary Is Hunted In Harisonburg Blaze

Harrisonburg, Va., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Believing the fire which destroyed Luther Lohr's barn near here to have been of incendiary origin, officers today placed bloodhounds on the trail. They said they sought a neighbor who was believed to have held a grudge against Lohr.

Three horses, 17 cattle and large quantities of foodstuffs were destroyed in the fire. The damage was only partly covered by insurance. Lohr's telephone line was severed, preventing him from summoning aid.

WISCONSIN ORDERS INSURANCE OF JOBS

Governor Signs Law to Compel Employers to Protect Workers.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Wisconsin today served notice on its industries that workmen receiving less than $1,500 annually must be protected against unemployment.

Governor Philip F. La Follette signed the unemployment insurance law, making the badger state the first to put such legislation into effect.

The law requires industries to set up reserves to insure against idleness those workmen earning less than $1,500 a year. The sponsor of the law, Assemblyman Harold Groves, University of Wisconsin economics professor, felt that persons earning more are more able to glard themselves against unemployment.

The law applies only to firms employing ten or more persons. The industries are given until July, 1933, to cover 175,000 workers with the jobless insurance. If the figure is not reached, a compulsory law will be placed into operation.

Under the plan the industries must contribute two per cent of their payroll for two years to build up insurance funds. After that period when the fund reaches $50 per employe, the contribution is to be reduced to one per cent and contributions shall cease when the fund totals $75 for each worker.

If a regular worker is laid off through no fault of his own, he becomes eligible to receive weekly benefits not to exceed $10 and not for more than ten weeks in a year. Benefits can be extended, however, if the worker has contributed to the reserve. The law provides the employer may have his worker contribute to the fund.

The reserves will not be pooled into one state fund but will be administered by the individual employers.

E. C. GRAHAM GETS MEDAL FOR SERVICE

Cosmopolitan Club Gives Honor for Organizing Aid to Jobless.

Edwin C. Graham, chairman of the District of Columbia committee on employment, was awarded the Cosmopolitan Club's distinguished service medal for 1931 at a special luncheon yesterday at the Carlton.

Included in the group which turned out to honor Mr. Graham were Commissioners Crosby and Reichelderfer and representatives of many clubs and civic organizations.

Mr. Graham's work in organizing the District employment committee was described as "the greatest civic service to Washington in 1931," by Dr. J. Rozier Biggs, chairman of the club's distinguished service medal committee, who made the presentation.

"This man has also done yeoman work for the Community Cheat, now conceded to be one of the greatest improvements in the handling of welfare work ever made in Washington," Mr. Biggs went on. "He is a member of the board of trustees and of the executive committee of this organization.

"He is also, to disclose a few of his civic interests, treasurer of the board of the Salvation Army, treasurer of the Social Hygiene Society of the District of Columbia, and the Washington Institute for Mental Hygiene, director of the American Civic Association and the National Capital civic fund, a member of the executive committee of the Board of Trade and of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission and holds other civic offices too numerous to mention."

In accepting the award Mr. Graham said in part:

"I am to human not to have been pleased when I was advised that the Cosmopolitan Club has chosen me to be the recipient of its distinguished service medal.

"It seems almost impossible to speak of life in Washington without the premise that we stand out as different from any other community in our land. There exists in our city, as a matter of necessity, more mechanisms in the form of organized groups of men and women to study the needs of the community than in any other comparable city in our country."

Funeral Rites Are Held For Walter L. Credeford

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 28.—Funeral rites for Walter L. Credeford, a former resident of this city, who died in Detroit, Mich., were held this afternoon at a local undertaking parlor, the service being conducted by the Rev. Edwin S. Sweeney, pastor of the Christian Church.

Mr. Credford was 42 years of age. He had been district manager of the Edison Storage Battery Co., of Washington, D. C., and Detroit, Mich., for the past nine years. He is survived by his widow, who was Miss Rebecca Nicholson, of Washington, D. C., and by one sister, Mrs. Anna Detlefoen, of Richmond.

BETHLEHEM STEEL PASSES UP DIVIDEND

Small Net Income for 1931 Precludes Payments on Common Stock.

New York, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Directors of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, America's second largest steel company, today decided "in view of present conditions" not to declare any dividend on the common stock.

This was the first break in dividend payments since January 24, 1929, when after a lapse of four and a half years common dividend payments had been restored.

The company issued its preliminary report for 1931 showing net income of $115,745, which contrasted with $23,843,406 in 1930 and $42,242,980 in the boom year of 1929. The company's 1931 earnings were equialent to 12 cents a share on the outstanding preferred stock, on which the regular quarterly dividend payment of $1.75 a share was ordered.

No Improvement in Orders.

"There is no improvement in orders," said E. C. Grace, president of the company. "As a matter of fact, they are a little lower in January than in December."

Mr. Grace said there was a "little better feeling in the steel industry," but he was unwilling to make predictions.

"It would take some one with an exceedingly strong microscope to see any encouragement in the steel industry at the moment," the executive said. "The process of coming back is indeed a slow one. The only way I see that it can be done is for everybody to realize the situation and buckle down and work as they have never worked before."

But he declined to let the present plight of business make him too gloomy.

"We've been through depressions before," he said, "and each one has seemed the worst.

Hopes For Little Profit.

"Things will look different if we ever reach the place in this industry where we can make just a little profit. Just a little more added to the selling price of steel—which would mean only a few cents on the price of an automobile—and prosperous business would not be far away."

The wage reduction movement, he said, is constructive.

"A railroad wage reduction," he said, "might result in some buying of steel rails."

Bethlehem Steel Corporation's total income for the fourth quarter was reported at $3,485,700 compared with $3,954,960 in the preceding quarter and $7,418,383 in the corresponding quarter one year ago. The dividend rate on the common stock had been 50 cents quarterly. The figure was reduced to that figure from $1 quarterly in the second quarter of 1931.

Editors of Virginia Meet at Richmond

Former Gov. Byrd Will Address Association Today.

RAILROAD WORKERS AGREE TO PAY CUT

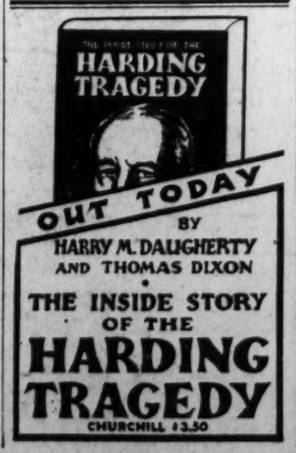
that wages of such classes should not be reduced.

"However * * * we feel * * * that we should undertake to make the best settlement possible. Therefore, be it resolved, that the president and executive committee be authorized and instructed to join * * * in settlement of the wage matter on a basis of reduction from each paycheck (not to exceed 10 per cent) for a period of one year, the basic rates to remain as at present.

"This arrangement to terminate automatically twelve months after the plan becomes effective; and be it further resolved, that the arrangement specifically provides that the railroads party to these negotiations will not undertake to reduce wages for a period of one year after termination of this agreement."

The twenty major union leaders agreed upon the program after two weeks of bickering with nine railroad presidents who informed them at the opening of the protracted Chicago wage conference that unless lower salaries went into effect immediately the whole railroad industry would be imperiled.

The union conferees considered their action the most momentous in the history of railway labor negotiations. They gave to the railroads, in effect, $250,000,000, enough to insure their meeting fixed charges during the next year. The railroads promised in return to enter in good faith upon a stabilized employment program.



PAIR SAID TO ADMIT SLAYING MAN HERE

Two Taken as Suspects in Old Germantown Death Confess, Report.

Two colored men, arrested in Baltimore yesterday in connection with the murder of Horace D. Waters, 79-year-old merchant of Old Germantown, Md., are said to have admitted shooting Israel Finkelstein during a holdup early Wednesday in his store on Firs ttsreet near Fenton street northeast.

The reward for the capture of the men who murdered Mr. Waters on January 20 yesterday wa increased to $2,000. Kenneth Waters, son of the merchant and banker, announced that the victim's family had offered $1,000 for the capture of the men. The Montgomery County commissioners had previously offered a reward of $1,000.

Members of the holdup squad of the Metropolitan Police Department today will go to Baltimore to question the two colored prisoners, who are said to have admitted shooting Finkelstein when he resisted their attempt to hold him up and rob him, while in his grocery store.

The additional 200 men who were placed on the streets to forestadd any further holdups was still on patrol last night. No holdups had been reported at midnight, while there was but one on Wednesday night.

Montgomery County police are expected to go to Baltimore today to question the prisoners held there in connection with the Waters killing. A number of Montgomery County police were here last night running out leads on the Waters murder.

The men held in Baltimore are Carl McKeemer, 25 years old, of Baltimore, and James Gray, 25 years old, of York, Pa. The men arrived in Baltimore Wednesday night, having stolen a ride on a freight train from Washington. They were taken into custody at 1400 Jefferson street.

Another arrest in the Waters case and the Finkelstein shooting is expected shortly. Montgomery County police and Washington detectives were searching the colored settlements here for traces of suspects in the Waters murder, and also for another suspect in the Finkelstein shooting.

Girl's Kidnaper-Slayer Declared to Be Insane

Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Charles Bischoff, eccentric cobbler and confessed kidnaper-slayer of 6-year-old Marian McLean, was declared insane today by three court-appointed alienists. Judge C. S. Bell previously announced he would send Bischoff to Lima State Hospital for Criminal Insane if found of unsound mind.

Kidnaping of the McLean girl December 19 and discovery of her mutilated body five days later by Bischoff in the basement of his tenement, aroused this city to the greatest man hunt in its history.

ABYSSINIAN APOLOGY TENDERED SOUTHARD

Elaborate Ceremony Marks Regrets for Attack; Ten Culprits Present.

Addis Ababa, Abyssinia, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Spreading an elaborate ceremonial, the Abyssinian government tendered a formal apology today to American Minister Addison E. Southard for the attack made on him by native policemen about ten days ago.

The ceremony took place in the morning at the exact spot on the road where Mr. Southard was knocked down after his automobile had run over a woman's foot. A hundred Abyssinian police in full uniform, commanded by an Armenian commissioner and two native chiefs, were drawn up alongside the road to await his coming.

When Mr. Southard arrived by automobile from the capital, 10 miles distant, the entire line saluted him and the American flag that his car was carrying. The ten offenders stood chained hand and foot behind the police chiefs.

The apology was read publicly in the Aramaic language and was followed by recital of the sentences for the culprits. They were sentenced to prison for one year and were fined 500 Abyssinian dollars — virtually equivalent to life imprisonment inasmuch as none of the prisoners has the remotest prospects of paying his fine.

The ceremony was concluded by the police officials handing over the documents of apology to Mr. Southard and by his acceptance of them in the name of the American Government.

WRIGLEY FUNERAL RITES ARE SIMPLE

Suortsman and Gum Magnate Will Be Buried on Isle He Owned.

Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—In contrasting simplicity to the palatial setting of his late winter mansion, funeral rites were spoken at the bier of William Wrigley, jr., today.

Only a few friends and members of the multi-millionaire sportsman and chewing gum manufacturer's family were present as the Rev. Leslie E. Learned of the All Saints' Episcopal Church, Pasadena, conducted the rites.

But in the street in front of the expansive home hundreds of others stood shivering in the sharp wind which swept from snow capped mountain peaks while the fifteen minute services lasted.

A pipe organ played softly from within as the Rev. Mr. Learned, quoting Lord Alfred Tennyson, asked that "there be no moaning at the bar, when I put out to sea."

It was a fitting setting for the rites of a man whose success posted him as a great international figure, but whose simplicity of character marked him as one with the common touch.

Standing over the flower-laden casket was a rose-formed replica of the Catalina, flagship of Wrigley's small fleet which plied between the mainland and his prize possession, Santa Catalina Island, which will be his final resting place.

Led by a motorcycle police corps, the small funeral cortege moved slowly to a local mortuary, where the body will rest until a mausoleum is erected on Mount Ada, Catalina Island, near Wrigley's winter home there.

PRESIDENT SPURS SENATE'S HELP TO BANK DEPOSITORS

vote, approved the nominations of Charles G. Dawes as president and Harvey C. Couch as a director of the Reconstruction Corporation. The confirmation of Jesse H. Jones as a director followed without a contest or a recorded vote.

One roll call sufficed for the three nominees. The vote was on the confirmation of Couch, and he was appointed 71 to 10.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, made no reply to Blaine's accusations that Couch as a railroad director had ignored and even violated the railroad law. When Blaine asked for a record vote Robinson said, "Let him have a record vote."

Dawes Is Indorsed.

One Democrat, McGill, of Kansas, voted against Couch. Eight Republicans and the Farmer-Labor member, Shipstead, of Minnesota, joined. The eight Republicans were Blaine and La Follette, Wisconsin; Brookhart, Iowa; Cutting, New Mexico; Frazier and Nye, North Dakota; Johnson, California, and Norbeck, South Dakota.

The President is expected to name the fourth director—also a Democrat—on Monday. He is consulting with Democratic leaders on this choice and still looking to the Northwest and for a lawyer.

Blaine made no charges against Dawes, simply reciting the story of his loan to a Lorimer banking institution in Chicago when it was threatened with closing in 1912 and referring to the transaction as a "magician's trick."

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, strongly indorsed Dawes, saying he had the esteem and good will of the whole American public.

Applications for loans from the Reconstruction Corporation accumulated yesterday at the Treasury, and examination of their contents began.

While preparations to get credits to work were under way, President Hoover again consulted with Undersecretary Mills of the Treasury and Senator Walcott (Republican), Connecticut, on financial legislation.

Applications to share in the $2,000,000,000 fund which will be advanced to encourage business are not to be made public, nor will information be given out when loans are approved.

Walcott expects the corporation to function on a decentralized basis, with branches in various sections and bank examiners available to evaluate securities which can not, readily be brought to Washington for examination as loan-making foundations.

Congress Action Nears On U. S. Aid to Jobless

(Associated Press.)

Notice was given the Senate yesterday by Senator La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, that he would move on Monday to consider the bill for $375,000,000 Federal aid to unemployed.

Senator Costigan (Democrat), Colorado, a coauthor with La Follette of the Federal aid measure, had read to the Senate the statement issued Wednesday night by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, estimating unemployed at 8,300,000 and demanding Federal aid.

A sharp contest is in prospect over the direct Federal relief proposal to which President Hoover is opposed.

On the other side of the Capitol, hearings were set for next week on the direct Federal relief proposal.

A House labor subcommittee, headed by Representative Jacobsen (Democrat), Iowa, will study testimony given before the Senate manufactures committee on the La Follette-Costigan bill. Then it will decide what witnesses to call.

lin "explained and justified the necessity of such measures."

"At the same time," the note said, "he assured Mr. Edge that in their arrangement and application the French government would not fail to take into account as far as possible the desiderata which the ambassador proposed."

The American Embassy already had forwarded to the French foreign office an aide-memoire protesting against the quotas on the importation of radio parts, which American manufacturers declared to be discriminatory in favor of Dutch and German producers, who were allowed larger quotas.

American exports of electrical machinery to France also were badly hit by the import quotas, which assigned much less business to the United States for the first three months of this year than was given to other countries, particularly Germany and Switzerland.

The American communication called attention to a trade agreement in 1930 and pointed out that the radio industry, particularly, is a young industry, whose development would be adversely affected by the restrictions.

KIWANIANS HEARTILY INDORSE WASHINGTON ESSAY CONTEST

to win the essay prizes. Thus, to learn more of his high ideals, his exalted patriotism, his firm belief in divine guidance cannot help but inspire and encourage our youth during these troublous times."

Mrs. Sippel thus voiced the universal belief that such contests as that sponsored by the Washington Post are an ideal way to awaken the abiding faith of the young of the nation in George Washington and his associates who built this country on so firm a foundation in the early days of the Republic. Teachers and others charged with the direction of the students in the public, private and parochial schools of the District, Maryland and Virginia eligible to enter the contest report that the contest has brought renewed interest not only in the life of Washington but also in that entire historical period as well.

In answer to an inquiry, contestants are informed that it is not necessary for them to have the Washington booklet furnished by the Washington Post through the courtesy of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission in order to compete for prizes. This booklet is simply an added help in the assembling of facts relating to George Washington.

Among the essays received yesterday were those from Helen Garbelman, 12, 1509 D street, southeast; Mildred Cline, 12, of Alexandria, Va., and George Platt, 14, of 922 New York avenue, north west.

Today's specimen essay follows:

"There are some important pictures of George Washington. A famous picture is 'Washington Crossing the Delaware River.' The man who painted George Washington and his men crossing the Delaware River was Emanuel Leutze. He was a German. He painted it about 1851. He was 22 years old when he painted it. I think it is a good picture of him crossing the river standing up in the boat bravely. There were lots of boats loaded with brave soldiers going across. In the movies and the newspaper I saw 'Believe It or Not,' Ripley said that there is something wrong with the picture. The flag in the picture is the wrong flag. The flag flown in this picture was not finished at that time. The lady who was making it did not get it done in time.

At Valley Forge.

"There is also a picture showing Washington and Lafayette at Valley Forge, 20 miles northwest from Philadelphia. This picture is of the winter of 1777, a heavy winter. Washington and Lafayette stopped to talk to the sentry. I liked this picture because it showed how they did at Valley Forge.

"Gilbert Stuart painted the finest picture of George Washington. Every schoolroom has been given a colored copy of this picture. Stuart started this picture in 1795, but George Washington died before it could be finished. The Stuart portrait of Washington representing the subject in the later years of his life are the most famous of both artist and sitter.

"A friend gave my teacher a heavy gold frame for George Washington's picture. There is red velvet next to the picture. This makes the picture stand out.

Dreamed of Washington.

"My teacher dreamed that George Washington was looking out of a window instead of out of a picture frame. He said to her, 'Tell the boys to be kind to one another because life is too short to be quarrelling all the time.' He also told her not to get nervous and cross with the boys.

"A lady named Adelaide Hiebel tried to finish this picture. But I think she ruined it. George Washington looks good to me except the one in which the lady tried to finish him."

FARMER'S SHOOTING IS LAID TO VIRGINIAN

Wounded Man Declares He Told Brother-in-Law Not to Trespass.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 28.—John Beasley, of near Crozet, is held in the county jail here on a charge of feloniously shooting his brother-in-law, William Woody, on Tuesday, near the latter's home, four miles west of Crozet. He surrendered to Magistrate J. W. Wolfe, of Crozet, soon after the shooting.

Woody, a farmer, is in University Hospital recovering from wounds in the hip and thigh, received when he warned Beasley against trespassing on his land. Beasley and another man, he said, who were armed for hunting, approached and when he told them they were trespassing and urged them to leave, Beasley opened fire.

Both charges of the shotgun took effect, at a distance of about twenty paces. Woody, after receiving treatment by Dr. E. D. Davis, of Crozet, was brought here. His condition was reported as improved at the hospital today.

Beasley returned to Crozet soon after the shooting, Magistrate Wolfe said today, and surrendered. The shooting took place in the public road, it is understood. Beasley will probably have a preliminary trial tomorrow morning, and in the meantime is not expected to be allowed bail.

Beasley is the husband of Woody's sister, and both families live a few miles west of Crozet, in the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Streets' Widening Asked by Leesburg

Wants King and Market Taken Over by State Highway Board.

Special to The Washington Post.

Leesburg, Va., Jan. 28.—In the interest of widening the main streets of Leesburg, the town council has ordered that the State highway commission be asked to take over the two main streets in town, King and Market streets, with the view that they would be made 30 feet wide.

A committee was appointed from the council to work with a committee from the Leesburg Rotary Club in working out a solution in which the telephone and electric light wires be run underground. The council committee consists of George E. Ward, L. C. Rollins and R. M. Jackson. The Rotary committee is composed of E. L. McFarland, E. E. Garrett, Bruce McIntosh and George Hughes.

He asked that a committee from the council and one of citizens of the town be appointed to study a system by which the crossing could be made safe. The committee from the council is composed of J. H. Turley, W. E. Plaster and R. M. Jackson. The citizens' committee is composed of E. L. McFarland, E. E. Garrett and Bruce McIntosh.

Credit Pool's Merger With Finance Is Denied

Richmond, Va., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Julien H. Hill, State chairman of the National Credit Corporation, tonight sent official notification to all Virginia banks, denying the report that the National Credit Corporation would be absorbed by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. He said the organization will be kept intact and will continue to function actively.

The Virginia organization, since its establishment in November, has loaned $1,800,000 to 35 Virginia banks on collateral not acceptable under existing regulations for rediscount by the Federal Reserve Bank.

Peanut Plant Destroyed In $200,000 Blaze

Edenton, N. C., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Fire late today destroyed the Edenton plant of the Farmers Peanut Co. and two peanut warehouses, causing damage estimated at $200,000 and throwing more than 100 workmen out of employment at least temporarily.

The fire is believed to have started from sparks thrown out by a motor on the fourth floor. It was brought under control only after several hours of hard work by the Edenton fire department, assisted by firemen from Elizabeth City. For a time nearby buildings were threatened. The plant was one of the town's largest industries.

BICENTENNIAL FUND OF $225,000 VOTED

House Sends to Conference Deficiency Bill With Minor Changes.

Concurring in the $225,000 compromise on United States bicentennial appropriations, the House yesterday sent back to conference the $126,000,000 first deficiency bill, with only minor changes.

No voice spoke out in favor of restoring to the United States Bicentennial Commission the $250,000 originally voted by the House, but cut down by the Senate.

In a statement, however, Associate Director Sol Bloom, who argued down all comers when the item was previously debated in the House, said the commission is "slipping back" 4,000 letters a day, by reason of its depleted staff.

He said 60,000 individual pieces of mail have piled up, as correspondence, accelerated because of the approaching celebration, increases daily.

"I wish I could get some of those folks on the hill who voted to cut the appropriation to come up here and see what we are doing," said Representative Bloom.

Before the House approved the deficiency conference report, it insisted that a Senate amendment for the construction of a road across Wind River Indian Reservation, Wyo., be eliminated. Objection also was raised to added funds for training of Air Corps Reserve officers.

SMITHSBURG BANK SUIT IS CONTINUED

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Jan. 28.—The suit of the Smithsburg Banking Co. started January 11, asking that its agreement of consolidation with the Central Trust Co., Emery L. Coblentz, president, be set aside because of misrepresentation and fraud on the part of officials of the trust company, was resumed before Chief Judge Hammond Urner and Judge Arthur D. Willard in circuit court today.

Following testimony of half a dozen witnesses, including George W. Page, Maryland State bank examiner, now in charge of liquidating the assets of the Trust company, the hearing was suspended until a time agreed upon by the attorneys to complete the case.

Officials of the Smithsburg institution testified that the Central Trust Co. was insolvent at the time of the merger. It was alleged that the trust company officials declared the company had a capital and surplus of $3,000,000 and resources of $18,000,000 at the time of the merger, June 29. The trust company and its eleven banks, including the Smithburg institution closed their doors September 3.

Was Solvent, Page Says.

Mr. Page testified the trust company was solvent at the time of the merger. He added, however, that he had criticized some of the loans of the company and had asked Mr. Coblentz to have them reduced as soon as possible, which he said was done. He stated that approximately $100,000 had been paid on the indebtedness of more than $700,000 between June 28 and the time the company closed its doors. Mr. Page also testified he had notified directors of the Peoples Banking Co. of Smithsburg not to pay its regular dividend as of July 1.

John T. Meany, a director of the Washington, D. C., Real Estate Board and property appraisal expert, was called to testify in regard to Washington properties assigned as collateral on the Central Trust Co.'s loan of $2,551,062.86. Following a contention over the admissibility of Mr. Meany's testimony, finally allowed, the witness described the following properties:

No. 2 Iowa Circle, an old building; his valuation, $15,000; loan on property, $12,650, to Central Securities Co.

Franklin Park Apartment, 1332 I street northwest, 100 apartments, downtown; his valuation, $350,000; loan, $137,650, to Central Securities Co.

Clifton Terrace Apartments, entire front between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, 91 apartments; his valuation, $1,500,000; loan, $489,250, to Blue Ridge Investment Co.

Gordon Hotel Valuation.

Gordon Hotel, Sixteenth street; his valuation, $275,000; loan, $59,000, to Blue Ridge.

Meany's testimony was attacked by counsel for both the trust company and the receiver on the grounds that he had not taken into account in his valuation the income of the properties. He stated he did not know the income on a number of them.

H. E. Meamans, assistant State bank examiner, placed the total amount of syndicate notes given for capital stock and surplus of the Central Trust Co. as of June 29 at $795,020. The list of creditors of the trust company, which included a number of accounts of from $21,000 to $769,000, included the Union Trust Co. of Baltimore, Chase National Bank of New York, National Metropolitan Bank of Washington and Irving Trust Co. of New York.

4 Dummy Mines In Chesapeake Bay

Ship Masters Are Requested by Army to Note Blasts' Positions.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Army engineers have planted four dummy mines in Chesapeake Bay, according to a note to mariners issued today by the Norfolk hydrographic office. Ship masters are requested to note the positions of the mines so they will not collide with them. The dummy mines are to be used in training and practice.

The notice issued by the hydrographic office reads as follows:

"Army engineers report four dummy mines planted in Chesapeake Bay, 61 degrees true, 2,500 yards from Old Point Comfort Light. The area of the mines is marked by two red spar buoys, a red lantern being suspended from each buoy. The group of dummy mines are placed on approximately north and south lines, 300 feet in length. The buoy marking the south end of the mine field is located as follows:

"Old Point Comfort Light bears 241 degrees true, tangent east side of Fort Wool, 206 degrees, true."

BILL ON SECURITIES OFFERED BY BLAINE

Few Changes Are Made in Measure Which Was Blocked Last Year.

Senator John J. Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, yesterday reintroduced, with few changes, his "blue sky" bill for regulation of securities in Washington that last year passed the Senate and was blocked in the House.

One of several bills drafted by the Blaine subcommittee of the Senate District committee, following a broad investigation into local real estate and securities practices, endows the Public Utilities Commission with power to regulate and register security issues.

Under the bill introduced yesterday, a "Bureau of Securities," not hitherto provided for, would be set up within the Public Utilities Commission.

Another new provision excludes from registration securities issued on business enterprises based on "extremely hazardous" principles. Revocation of registration of such securities likewise is provided.

The change increases from 30 to 60 days the period in which a stock salesman can take back worthless securities, reimbursing the purchaser, and thus avoiding action against him. Another provides that recovery action can not be taken three years after sale. It was two years under the old bill.

Two other bills arising from the Blaine real estate investigation, one safeguarding the release of deeds of trust and another regulating the foreclosure of mortgages in the District, already have been introduced by Senator Blaine. Measures nearly identical have been put forward by Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah.

1,711 Forest Fires in '31 Are Reported in Virginia

Richmond, Va., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Chapin Jones, State forester, in a review of fire control work of the Virginia Forest Service, during 1931, said today that 1,711 forest fires were reported to his office for the year in 58 counties organized for fire control.

These fires, all of which were on privately-owned lands, burned a total estimated area of 151,131 acres, and caused a direct tangible property loss of $235,700. This estimate does not include the disbursements, amounting to approximately $35,000, made by the State forest service to extinguish the fires.

Virginians Will Urge Judge Groner's Naming

(Associated Press.)

A committee of the Democratic Virginia General Assembly will call on President Hoover tomorrow to urge appointment of Judge D. Lawrence Groner, of Norfolk, Va., a Republican, as associate justice of the Supreme Court.

Judge Groner, who now serves on the District Court of Appeals, continues to be included in discussion here of the appointment. He is conceded a strong contender for the place, should the President turn to the South. Mr. Hoover's advisers, however, still assert he will find a Westerner.

On route 27, in Halifax County, bids are asked on 1.9 miles of soil road from a point 0.7 mile east of Sandy Creek to a point 1.2 miles west of it. In Appomattox County, a bridge 127 feet in length is planned a half mile from Caskie, Va.

Two Brothers Perish In Flaming Residence

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 28.—Two Negro brothers, Willie, 21, and Dolophis Vaughan, 12, were burned to death last night when trapped in a second-story bedroom of their burning home near Widewater, 20 miles north of here in Stafford County. Their parents, Solomon and Elizabeth Vaughan, and a younger sister escaped unhurt.

The fire originated in a defective flue directly beneath the boys' bedroom. The flames spread rapidly, cutting off all means of exist before the youths were awakened by the frantic calls of their parents. The dwelling house and a smoke house nearby were destroyed.

Culbertson on Contract

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

SUBTLE DEFENSE.

THE weakness of many players at the Contract table is that in playing the defense they make their hands an open book to an alert Declarer. So obvious is this fault at times that it might be as well for them to lay their cards face up on the table and thus remove entirely the possibility of a wrong guess by the man playing the hand. Correct defense often involves the possibility of for the moment misleading your partner if thereby you can also mislead the Declarer. It is axiomatic in Contract that against a suit declaration, if you are leading a particular suit and hold the Ace and small cards of it, you should lay down the Ace, as otherwise you may never cash it, but this rule, like all other rules, has its exceptions, as the hand below, played in the recent Vanderbilt Trophy Contest, demonstrates:

North—Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.
East and West not vulnerable.

The Bidding:

North	East	South	West
1♡	Pass	1NT	Pass
2◇	Pass	2♡	Pass
3♡	Pass	4♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

I make no comment on the bidding, but give it as it actually occurred. The final contract is correct, although there is no question that the road chosen was not the best.

Playing the East hand was a brilliant young player from New York, Mr. Sam Fry, jr. His first lead was the conventional lead of the club King. Obviously, to continue with that suit would be to set up the third round of it for the Declarer. Mr. Fry, without a moment's hesitation, then led the spade 3. Playing the contract in the North was one of the world's recognized master players. He studied the lead and did what practically every player would do faced with the same situation. He played the Knave of spades. West won with the Queen and thus East and West cashed 2 spade tricks and 2 club tricks and defeated the contract, which would have been made against anything but super-excellent defense. The defending player gave the Declarer a chance to err.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Question: What is a five-card biddable suit?

Answer: A five-card biddable suit is any five-card suit headed by ½ honor-tricks or better.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Mr. Culbertson will be glad to answer questions on bidding and play of hands sent in by readers. Address him in care of The Washington Post, inclosing a 2-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

What Today Means to You

"AQUARIUS."

IF January 29 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:30 a. m. to 1 p. m., from 5 p. m. to 6:20 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:30 a. m. to 9 a. m. and from 2:30 p. m. to 4 p. m.

Astrological influences of a disturbing nature will be apt to mar the matrimonial happiness of married couples for the time being on January 29. Young people will forget worldly worries through happiness of an intimate nature. Underhanded scheming by those around them will cause more worry than damage to those in business or professions.

The child born on this January 29 will have a restless and somewhat combative nature, and parents should insist upon discipline and application. It will be ambitious, but not energetic or enterprising. Educational advantages will make a strong appeal to it.

Born January 29, you play a real, red-blooded, firm-footed man's or woman's part in a world ever in need of those of your type. You are not looking for soft landings, or for some one on whom to lean. You are not afraid of responsibilities, and you are usually unselfish enough or "chicken-hearted" enough to carry many burdens belonging to others anxious to shift their loads to another's back.

You are too sober and steady minded to take an apathetic, indulgent, frivolous view of life. You value highly those simple things which so many thrill-chasers have tossed aside in their quest for something more intoxicating or glittering. Your friends turn to you with a feeling of security in time of sore need. You are able to keep yourself clam and impersonal when others would get distraught and upset. You try to keep suspicion out of your heart, and your tongue free from gossip, malice and sarcasm. You are ready to sympathize where another would criticize; you will give a glad hand where another would give a kick. This is due to your humble attitude toward self and your charitable attitude toward others. The best that is in you is reserved for your home and family.

Successful people born January 29: Thomas Horatia Bevan, Consular Service.

Arthur Woods, former New York police commissioner.

Daniel Kiefer, political reformer.

Philip Powell Calvert, entomologist.

Jane Claire INTERPRETS the MODE

New York, Jan. 28.

THE wife of the ski champion has something interesting to say about styles for winter sports. She remarks that an Englishman, upon meeting her in a ski-jumping costume with the long trousers tied at the ankle and held at the foot by a strap, said, "You are the first Norwegian woman I have ever seen in Norwegian dress."

This costume, though it has become the fashion in sports in France and Central Europe and America, has never been worn in Norway for skiing. It is considered necessary for ski-jumping, to be sure, but every one in Norway who goes skiing and not jumping, wears knickers. Knickers and long woolen stockings or loose leather leggings. These knickers give much greater freedom of movement, although the trousers tied at the ankle and held under the foot by a strap are deemed necessary for a correct appearance in the air—if one is jumping into the air.

Now I think that's very interesting, but if any one writes and asks me just what costume one would wear were she both skiing and ski-jumping, I'd just have to leave town! Or maybe I could write to the ski champion's amiable wife again, and find out. Meanwhile, it will be quite de rigueur to wear the long trousered jodpors that you have always worn for skiing, even though you must never make the mistake of claiming them as Norwegian!

* * * *

The house apron of house aprons! One that has a circular skirt, a trim upper, a double front which can be changed over to answer the doorbell, and is as easy to wash and iron as a luncheon cloth!

And the apron of all aprons, also circular, also easily laundered, also chic!

And how to make them both for 30 cents, or 10 cents for one and 20 for the other, to be specific.

Yes, that is what this week's leaflet tells you—if you send that stamped, self-addressed envelope right away to the Dare Department of The Washington Post you may have that leaflet, and make those aprons. And will you like them!

* * * *

The next time you want to do a little experimenting, get three yards of good unbleached muslin and 10 cents worth of boiling dye. Dye this material, wash it out after it is dry in vinegar and water, iron and see what you have—for house aprons or kiddies' frocks!

* * * *

Simple, Grecian in line, and lovely in execution. That is what I would say of the evening gown I sketch for you today, from the house of Lyolene, Paris. Its material, brilliant and mat satin in stripes, is its only trimming, and its cut is the rest.

The Long and the Short of It.

Well, I guess I'll just have to tell you how we solved the problem of how sister Dionne was going to have the comfort of bobbed hair and the elegance of long hair! We just tied it all into a "chignon" at the back of her neck, wound a rubber band around it, and cut all but a two-inch chignon of curls at the nape of the neck right off! But her hair is not bobbed—and, well, tomorrow I'll tell you what it isn't.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

HER HUSBAND JUST HUMAN.

DEAR FRANCES M'DONALD: I am not what one would call a devotee of your column, but I do read it occasionally and enjoy it very much. Often I have considered letters in your column ridiculous but the letter which I read this morning literally made my blood boil. What person with a reasonable amount of common sense and good nature couldn't make a success of marriage under "Elsie's" conditions. How many of us wouldn't like to shut ourselves up in a little groove and consider only our own pleasures? I have been married a little over six years, have three adorable youngsters, and a husband, whom I love even more now than when I married him, but I know he is not a paragon just as he knows that I am human. The children are just passing through the stage now when they need the most careful attention and care. They are five, three and six months. My husband's mother lives with us now, has been for three years. She helps as much as she is able but no matter how much any one helps there is not much going out for us right at present. We are glad to get once a week together, without any thought of going alone. My husband's friends are mostly all married and seem glad to have their wives accompany them.

Both my church and my family traditions demand that I have children. All the laws of civilization declare that no man can live sufficient unto himself. I do not criticize "Elsie's" way of living if she sees it that way, but what I do criticize is her idea of what is married life because it isn't according to my views. Marriage is a sharing of troubles and cares in which there can be no thought of one's own selfish desires.

Also maybe "Elsie" never took this view of the situation. From her letter I gathered that both she and her husband held excellent positions. I wonder if she ever stopped to think that there are many women who would give anything for a job so that they might have food to put in the mouths of hungry children; women whose husbands are either dead or unable to support them. My husband is not the model husband she declares hers to be. He hates to wash or dry dishes and doesn't know the first thing about the stove but when we were planning to be married he refused to take a wife until "he could earn all the bread and butter," he said.

I could talk for hours on this subject, but I will stop now with the remark that for "Elsie" to put her marriage up as a standard is an absolute farce. There is about one woman in a thousand that has a paragon for a husband and most of us ordinary scrapping mortals have several youngsters to plan for and sacrifice for.

I hope you will publish this that I may see other women's reaction. Thanking you, I am just,

ANOTHER MOTHER.

We will welcome the "reactions" and gladly give them space. Which is better, a houseful of youngsters and a husband who is just "human" or a childless home with a husband who finds it easy to be "perfect" with no money cares to try his soul? Which woman truly derives more from life—the one who tackles motherhood whatever the odds, or the one who keeps on at the office, preserves her manicure, and smiles at a perfect husband over a restaurant dinner at night?

Let us hear from those who have tried either method! If you have deferred motherhood, tell us whether you regret your course, or would do the same thing again. If you are struggling to raise a young family, tell us whether you feel repaid—even when Hubby is tired and cross. In other words, tell us whether you think it more important that your husband be a father than a perfect husband! That is a mighty big question. But we want your answer. So hold everything, and get the pen and ink!

We want you not only to read but contribute to this column of human experience. It has helped thousands to see their problems in a new and clearer light. Help by offering your experience to those in doubt.

How to Keep Well

REVELATIONS.

IF the skin is folded habitually or frequently according to any particular pattern by means of contraction of its muscles, the pattern is liable to become fixed. The folding may result from contraction of the heavy muscles below as well as those of the skin provided their contracture folds the skin. When the pattern has become fixed it is because the fibers of the deep skin have been so rearranged that they no longer smooth out the folds.

Crow's feet: Habitual narrowing of the eye opening, called squinting by the common folks, though the doctors give that word another meaning. It might be called a shutter action. We narrow the lid shutters and cause temporary crow's feet in order to shut out glare. We are apt to do it when laughing or when concentrating mentally. Therefore the causes of crow's feet are: Frequent exposure to glare, laughing, and concentrated thinking, provided in these processes the lid openings are narrowed. To avoid crow's feet habitually, avoid these causes.

Vertical wrinkles between the eyes: The most frequent cause is straining to see, though mental concentration is a close second. To avoid these wrinkles avoid eyestrain. Keep vision on a high plane of efficiency and avoid mental concentration, or learn to concentrate without wrinkling this zone.

Horizontal wrinkles across the brow: Among the causes which operate to throw the skin of this region into folds are: Laughing in which the technique includes wide opening of the eyes, worry and anxiety, and mental concentration. Habitually avoiding these is the way to escape these wrinkles.

Wrinkles of the lower part of the face are determined by the lip and mouth muscles, just as those of the upper part are largely dominated by the eyelid muscles and their accessories. Laughing causes wrinkling due to pulling the corners of the mouth up. To avoid these wrinkles we must habitually avoid this kind of laughing. Melancholy pulls the corners of the mouth down. If persisted in the corners of the mouth and the tributary territory have a downward sag. Keeping the jaws firmly set and holding the lips firmly together sometimes causes wrinkles, but more frequently determines the set of the mouth and the topography of the skin and flesh of the lower part of the face.

Prolonged labored breathing, for instance, that of the old asthmatic, causes a flaring and wrinkling located principally around the nostrils and upper mouth region. Conversely, the person whose face never registers emotion or thought—who maintains a placid, even countenance, always stands a fair chance of getting through life without wrinkles. However there is some wrinkles hazard for them. If they become fat in the face and later lose their facial embonpoint the slack will show as wrinkles.

SAFFRON AND TANSY.

M. D. writes:

1. What medical value has saffron?

2. What medical value has the plant called tansy?

REPLY.

1. The drug sold as saffron in this country is a part of a plant called safflower. It has little if any therapeutic action. It is made into a tea and this is given as a hot drink to bring out the eruption in measles. Probably any other warm beverage would serve as well, though there is no objection to saffron tea.

2. Tansy is used to produce abortion, in full doses it is a poisonous drug. The dose necessary to cause a woman to miscarry is greater than the fatal dose. In small doses it is without any effect other than those expected of hot beverages.

WINDOW GLASS.

M. W. E. writes: Is it true beyond a doubt that the supposed beneficent rays of the sun are neutralized when shining through common widow glass?

REPLY.

It is true as to that part of the ray that is violet and beyond. The heat and light rays do pass through glass and they have good qualities.

WHY HOUSE PLANTS FAIL.

ONE Monday, in this column, we discussed the necessity for fresh air, and the proper temperatures demanded by our more common house plants. On Wednesday, we explained the definite requirements of certain varieties which are found in the average collection of house plants. Today we wish to tell you of the special symptoms and the more common causes of maladies with which we are all familiar.

House plants, as a class, are subject to few, if any, specific diseases. Most of their troubles can be traced to unfavorable growing conditions, such as improper watering and dry air. However, even with the greatest care changes take place and healthy plants suddenly become dejected and forlorn. The following reasons for these changes should be understood by all plant owners.

When general defoliation takes place it is suggestive of gas poisoning, although it may be due to a sudden change in temperature, or to shock of transplanting. When the leaves fall, and the shoots remain dwarfed and put forth only very small leaves you may be sure the injury comes from gas. The plant must, if course, be removed to a place where the air is pure if it is to regain its health.

When the tips of the leaves become brown it is suggestive of improper watering, attacks from insects or drafts of cold air. With some large-leaved plants like the aspidistra, it may be due to water not penetrating the ball of earth in the pot when watering; with palms it suggests a lack of nourishment. With ferns, when combined with loss of color and failure to develop new fronds, it may be due to the presence of scale. Loss of color of the foliage may be attributed to overwatering, lack of food or attacks of insects.

Overwatering may cause the foliage to become spotted. Blotches may also be attributed to burning from direct sunlight on foliage which has been previously in shade. Plants should always be brought into direct sunlight gradually.

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed stamped envelope is supplied.

Beaver Dam Club Plans Building at Landover

Officials of the Beaver Dam Country Club, whose clubhouse was destroyed by fire recently, have decided to build another club structure near Landover, Md., it was learned yesterday.

Upman & Adams, with offices in the Woodward Building, will be the architects. Beyond the fact that the projected building will be a one-story and basement structure, no other details regarding it have as yet been decided.

Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

She Shouldn't be Tired

No energy . . . circles under her eyes. If she would only try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in tablet-form, she could be strong and happy again.

She Broke So Many Dates

"SORRY, Jack, but I simply can't go to the show with you tonight, after all."

It was the same old story. She knew that the rest of the crowd talked about the way she broke dates time after time, but she didn't know what to do.

The other girls didn't understand. They didn't suffer the way she did, each month. She hated to telephone and cancel engagements that way but she just couldn't make the effort to dress and pretend to enjoy the evening when every minute was such torture.

Poor girl, if some one had only told her that there was no need to suffer so each month!

For since Dr. Pierce's Paygon tablets have become available at nearly every drug store, thousands of women have found that monthly pains are no longer a problem.

Women now look forward to each new month without a single fear, for they simply keep handy—in purse or on bathroom shelf—a tiny metal box of Paygon tablets.

It's new

WHY impose on yourself an unnecessary burden of suffering when you have merely to step to the neighborhood druggist's and say "Dr. Pierce's Paygon tablets" and be prepared for any emergency? Safe, non-habit forming, these little tablets are bringing welcome relief to thousands.

Write to Dr. Pierce's Clinic, Buffalo, N. Y., for free advice.

..LIKE A RAY of SUNSHINE

Yes, there are people living in just such hovels as this right here in Washington. The visiting nurse seeks them out, and brings them what comfort she can.

Mother, ill and poor, alone with a daughter who is little more than an infant. No money with which to buy food, medicine or warmth. How much it means to them to hear the step of the visiting nurse on the stair!

Snow, sleet, cold do not deter the visiting nurse from her mission of mercy. She battles with the weather as she battles with poverty, sickness and distress. She is indeed a blessed warrior.

In the last year this nurse and 65 others on the field staff of the Visiting Nurse Association made 160,000 visits to 20,000 men, women and children who were ill in their homes.

BRINGING hope and cheer into Washington homes which are darkened with sickness and poverty. Mercifully, like a ray of sunshine, she comes into weary lives where no other light shines. Homes where happiness and hope have been blotted out by misfortunes and illness. These persons are not responsible . . they are victims of circumstances. Surely, you cannot deprive them of her services.....would you? Of course, you wouldn't. That is why we say—

GIVE!

For 32 years the Visiting Nurse has entered the homes of Washington's poor and needy. Her work MUST GO ON. If you are in a position to give . . will you say no? Of course you won't . . and perhaps you will give a little more than you think you can afford?

Fight Over Board Bill Leads to Prison Term

A sentence of one year in the Virginia State Penitentiary on a conviction of felonious assault was passed on Robert Morris, of near Harrisonburg, Va., yesterday in Fairfax County Circuit Court.

According to testimony, Morris struck Lee Shifflett, of Langley, Va., with a rock during an argument over an alleged unpaid board bill. Morris left the Shifflett home, where he had been a boarder, following a dispute. Later Shifflett and a neighbor went to collect the unpaid bill. During the argument that ensued, Shifflett was struck. The injury resulted in one side of his body becoming permanently paralyzed, it was alleged.

for the last seven years has maintained consistent leadership of the screen. All picture-lovers will remember the great succession of hits bearing the lion trademark. Garbo in "Mata Hari," Marie Dressler in "Emma," Wallace Beery and Clark Gable in "Hell Divers," "The Champ."

Sparing no efforts to bring out the best, M-G-M engaged our foremost playwright, Frederick Lonsdale, to write an original screen play. His "Lovers Courageous" is even greater than his celebrated stage successes such as "Aren't We All," "The High Road," "The Last of Mrs. Cheney," "The Best People." 4,500 SEE GIANT POLE WIN MAT BOUT IN 5 MINUTES

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE latest rift in the wrestling ranks revolves about the fine old physique of Ed "Strangler" Lewis, who seemingly has joined the Curley troupe of pachyderms and thus reduced the recognized world title claimants from three to two.

Previously in the field of championship claimants were Jim Londos, Curley's champion, Henri Deglane, champion of the Bowser circuit, and the Strangler, who refused to yield the most legitimate of all the claims to the title when he was beaten by Deglane on a foul.

By merging with the Curley outfit, Lewis apparently has recognized Londos as champion in consideration of the steady work he will be assured as a member of Monsieur Curley's brigade. Which situation is slightly paradoxical, inasmuch as Lewis is reported to have defeated Londos no less than a dozen times in the dim, dark past.

The Strangler made his debut in the Curley circuit last Wednesday night at Boston when he disposed of Pat O'Shocker, one of the regulars, in eleven minutes. Lewis, now that he is on the Curley wheel, is destined to make an appearance in Washington in the near future.

The National Boxing Association showed remarkable versatility in its decision prior to the Battalino-Miller fight at Cincinnati when Battalino weighed in at four pounds over the featherweight limit. The N. B. A. ruled that Battalino would be forced to forfeit his title, win or lose, but that Miller would gain the title if he won the bout. How Miller could succeed to the featherweight championship by beating an overweight champion, the N. B. A. neglected to explain. The result of "no contest" was befitting to the general complexity of matters.

Gene Tunney first retired from boxing at the tender age of 16, he reveals in the first installment of his biography which is to be published in Collier's. He took on Willie Green, an experienced professional, and absorbed such a beating that he decided he would never box as a professional again. The lure of the game proved too strong, however, and within a few weeks he donned the gloves again.

The 1932 roster of the Boston Braves is at hand, distastefully done in an astigmatic blend of red and green, but pregnant with illuminating facts:

"Rabbit" Maranville is not the smallest member of the team. That distinction belongs to Charles Chatham, who, like the Rabbit, is 5 feet 5 inches tall, but weights 150 pounds, 5 pounds less.

Among the 30 players listed, B. Earl Clark, outfielder, alone gives Washington as his home town, but we learn that the domicile of Arthur Shires is Italy, Tex. And Harry Gowdy, the coach, is none other than "Hank" Gowdy. Tom Zachary is J. Thomas Zachary in the family Bible, and a lad named Ellsworth Hazzard is a pitcher freshly signed from the University of Illinois.

Harrah, Okla., and Ada, Okla., appear in print once more as the domiciles of Lloyd and Paul Waner, respectively. The Pirates will take 34 players to the Paso Robles (Cal.) camp, of which 17 are pitchers.

The business of grading and sodding the diamond and outfield of Griffith Stadium is proceeding nicely under the direction of Groundkeeper Heisman and a crew of sixteen who are completing their third week of labor necessitated by the severe damage wrought by the cleated shoes of football players clashing at least twice a week throughout the late season.

Battalino loses his $1,000 forfeit and is fined $5,000 for the fiasco with Freddy Miller at Cincinnati, and the admissions are returned to the 2,000 faithful who saw the "no contest" bout. The admissions will be paid out of the former champion's fine, marking the first time a fighter ever paid the freight for a crowd at a championship bout. The depression seems to have hit the prize-fight industry.

J. C. C. Wrestlers Face Hagerstown "Y" Team

The undefeated Jewish Community Center wrestling team will play host to the Hagerstown Y. M. C. A. squad Saturday night at 8:30 o'clock in the Center gym. The Marylanders are reputedly one of the strongest amateur wrestling clubs in this section of the country. Jack Kosowsky, Harry Goldman, and Steve Sills, a trio of clever grapplers, are expected to help uphold the local honors. The remainder of the team will be announced later. An admission fee of 25 cents will be charged nonmembers, while members will be admitted free.

G. W. Frosh Quintet Beats Western High

Western High School's quintet held the George Washington Frosh on pretty nearly even terms throughout the first half of their game yesterday, but the Colonials stepped out in the second half and won by a score of 46-30.

Andy Gleason and Bill Noonan were the big guns in the Frosh attack, ringing up 13 and 17 points respectively. Anthony Latona and Everett Buscher were best for Western.

League Fives To Play in Tourney

District A.A.U. Rules on Registration for Title Competition.

Rockville Girls Seek Second Crown in Senior Class.

DISTRICT A. A. U. basket ball officials made it clear last night that boys and girls who hold amateur registration cards which do not expire until some time between February 1 and the start of the tournament, March 1, will not have to renew their cards until a date just prior to expiration.

For instance, if an unlimited 145-pound or 130-pound player has a card from last year dated February 15, and this is probable, for the tournament was held at a later date last year, he will not have to comply with the tournament regulations that all players in these three classes must be registered by February 1. This rule applies only to newcomers to A. A. U. competition and to those whose cards have gone over the one-year mark.

Boys Club Heavily Represented

It has been learned that all of the teams entered in the District Amateur League, sponsored by the Boys Club, and approximately eleven independent teams which play at the Boys Club, will compete for the championships. It is doubtful whether the Boys Club Optimists, 100-pound and 130-pound teams which won the titles in their respective classes last year, will defend their laurels, but the club will be represented by at least three teams. The majority of the teams in the Sunday School League, one of the largest in the city, also intend to enter.

The field is open in still another one of the seven tournament sections, it was learned last night in an announcement from Manager Anders, who piloted the Rockville sextet to the junior girls' championship last year. The Rockville girls will play in the senior section this year and have given fair warning that they are out to win top laurels.

Defeated Eagles Last Week

The team last week beat the Eagles, defending champions, 29-10, and have lost only two games in two years, both of them, by the way, to the Eagles.

Many of the same girls who played last year are back, including Capt. Bennett, Margy Kanode, Mrs. Ann Cupka, and Catherine Cockburn, stellar shots, and such auxiliary players as Gettings, Norris, Hutchinson, Huntington, and Linthicum.

V. M. I. Frosh Rout Harris Cadets, 58-18

Special to The Washington Post.

Lexington, Va., Jan. 28.—The V. M. I. freshmen, using a deliberate offense and an almost airtight defense, defeated the Harris Military Institute team here this afternoon, 58 to 18. Led by Downey, Hancock, Walker and Watson, all of whom scored 10 points or more, V. M. I. jumped into an 11-to-0 first-quarter lead, which was increased to 35 to 10 at half time. Albors, visiting center, showed a good eye for the basket after the opening quarter and scored all but three of his team's points.

WOOD PLANS NEW RECORD ATTEMPT

Time Made Wednesday May Not Be Accepted as Mark.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 28 (A. P.).—Unworried by possibility that his application for recognition as the world's speedboat champion might be held up by the Yachtsmen's Association of America, Gar Wood, who averaged 120.785 miles an hour with his Miss America IX here, yesterday, is proceeding with plans to shove the speed mark still higher.

He claimed the world's record after driving his craft over the Indian Creek course in two runs against the recognized record speed of 110.223 miles an hour established at Lake Garda, Italy, last July, by Kaye Don, of England.

Meanwhile, in Detroit, W. D. Edenburn, chairman of the Yachtsman's Association racing committee, said Wood apparently had not exceeded Don's speed by the required half-mile an hour.

Edenburg figured the speeds marks on nautical miles, while the timing of Wood's runs was on a basis of statute miles, it was explained. Official timers of Wood's runs said they believed he had only to exceed Don's time to establish a new record.

Wood and his mechanics worked today to lower the Miss America's nose so the craft will split through ripples on the water instead of shooting over them at high speed. This would eliminate rough riding for himself and his mechanic, and also would add at least a mile an hour to the boat's speed, Wood said.

"Whether the rules committee accepts the speed made yesterday as a record is up to the rules committee," Wood said. "If it's a record, all right: if it isn't, it's just the same. In either event, we are preparing to make another run in a few days.

"I did not understand that it is necessary to break the record by a definite margin. The rules committee never has explained this before."

Lone Western Boy In C.U. Track Meet

Beers, Hurdler and Jumper, to Be 1-Man Team in Cards' Indoor Games.

The one-man track team idea, first introduced by Tech, has spread to Western, where Coach Dan Ahern will enter a team of one in the Catholic University indoor meet — Willard Beers, hurdler and high jumper. Coincidently Tech's one-man team, that is, the one that will enter the Meadowbrook games, Marvin Chapman, also is a high jumper.

Coach Ahearn is building a rather large squad for the outdoor meets around Beers. The young timbertopper has had little chance to practice this year, but looks good on his last year's performances.

Western's grid team will hold a spring practice session, opening in about a fortnight. The Georgetown crew will total about 30. Next season's team will bristle with veterans, notably Jackie Lynham, all-high half back; Red Reynolds Turk Teehan and Huck Hilleary, backs; Wynne, center and strong tackles and guards.

V. P. I. FACES 5 WEEK-END CONTESTS

Basket Ball, Boxing, Wrestling Scheduled for Polytech.

Special to The Washington Post.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Jan. 28.—Virginia Polytechnic teams will bid desperately for wins over strong Southern Conference teams in five contests at home and abroad this week-end.

Three of the battles are with powerful outfits from the University of Virginia, another is a court battle with University of Maryland's Southern Conference champions at College Park, Md. Wrestling with Duke University matmen and boxing with Virginia are scheduled.

The Gobbler Basket Ball Team, conquered by Virginia here Monday, will meet the Cavaliers in a return battle at Charlottesville Friday evening. The Gobblers are eager for revenge and have worked on their offense hour after hour this week under Coach Gummy Proctor. The Techmen will head for Virginia's Memorial Gymnasium early tomorrow, knowing well that victory will be denied them unless they can curb Delafield and Bill Thomas. These two Cavaliers—Delafield at forward and Thomas at guard—shut the door on Tech aspirations in a hard-fought Blacksburg tilt the first of the week.

Tech to Face Maryland

After battling Virginia tomorrow the Techmen will make the hop to College Park to play Bozey Berger and Company—the very same band of court magicians that carried Maryladn's colors to the top in Dixie last year. That old saying, "Out of the frying pan and into the fire," may ride with the V. P. I. Team this week-end.

Off to a flying start last week with a clean-cut victory over University of North Carolina matmen, V. P. I.'s wrestling team will continue as host to Carolina teams, meeting Duke at home Saturday. The meet will start at 3 p. m. Poly's freshmen, nosed out by the Carolina Cubs last week, will not compete again until they meet Washington and Lee, February 6.

Virginia U. Schedules 15 Baseball Contests

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 28.—Another schedule for a major sport team at the University of Virginia was announced today by the General Athletic Association, as baseball schedules for Varsity and Freshman teams were released.

Fifteen games are listed for the varsity nine, all of them to be played with teams of Virginia, Maryland and North Carolina. Due to the fact that practically all the Northern schools have abandoned their spring Southern invasion, the usual list of attractive games that come early in April will be missing. Only a half-dozen games will be played at home, nine being scheduled on the fields of opponents. The annual North Carolina trip will be made on May 6 and 7. Maryland will open and close the schedule, playing on Lambeth Field on April Fool's Day, and at College Park on May 16.

The complete schedules follow:

Eagles, Vic's Challenged By Columbia Firemen

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., Jan. 28.—Robert McDonald, manager of the Columbia Firefighters Basket Ball Team, is after a game with the Skinker Eagles or Vic's Sport Store five, to be played on a home and home basis.

McDonald can be reached by phone Alexandria 1774.

The Alexandria High School team will meet the St. John's Prep tossers here Saturday night at Armory Hall. The Girls Sextet will mix with the Crusaders in the preliminary.

GAINS HELD TO DRAW.

Snow Comes For Winter Olympics

6-Inch Fall Insures Events; Competition Opens Tomorrow.

Norwegians Expected to Sweep Card in Ski Jumping.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—A 6-inch fall of snow today in the Valley of the Adirondack Mountains gladdened the hearts of 200 winter athletes of ten nations waiting for the opening of Olympic games February 4.

Up to today, due to unseasonable rains, warm temperatures, and puny snowfalls that failed to last, the athletes have not had better than a couple of inches of spow on which to work out.

As a precautionary measure the start of the national bobsled championships, scheduled for Friday and Saturday, was set back a day, and the bob riders of a dozen nations will not swing into action until Saturday. There was enough snow and ice on the $200,000 slide, most dangerous in the world, to warrant starting of the pre-Olympic spectacle tomorrow, but it was decided another day of freezing and perhaps more snow would insure the surface holding up.

Norwegian Skiers Star

Already the Norwegian ski jumpers, although they refuse to expand on the details, have fractured the record of 198 feet for the jump several times, one jump being measured at 205 feet, and there appears no prospect of competition from other nations that can prevent their sweeping clean every jumping event in the Olympics. Today every man on the Norwegian team sped down the slide, sailed far down the ice hill and landed calmly and cleanly at the bottom.

A few days ago one of the younger members of the Japanese team, 19-year-old Goro Adachi, skidded as he was about to take off, flew right off the course and landed face first in the grandstand, half way down the hill. Hospital authorities who mended a smashed nose and general all-around injuries said he could leave the hospital here within 24 hours. He probably will not be ready for another tussle, however, until some other Olympics.

Six Teams Are Ready

A half dozen man teams, among them the sleds of Billy Fiske and John Heaten, already tentatively named as the United States "boblet" representatives, will compete against the Austrian, German, Swiss and Italian pairs Saturday. Sunday the four-man teams of the same nations will race for the American title and the winner automatically will become the favorite for the only winter Olympic championship the United States salvaged from the 1928 games in Switzerland.

Church Fives Start Second Half Season

The second half of the Sunday School League will open Saturday with six games. United Brethren will meet Calvary M. E., Petworth will face Mount Vernon, Calvary Baptists clash with Kenilworth, Eldbrooke meets First Brethren, Calvary Drakes tangle with Atonement, and Trinity opposes Douglas.

Eldbrooke M. E. is out in front of the race with 11 victories and no defeats. Trinity M. E., Mount Vernon M. E., and United Brethren are deadlocked for the runner-up position.

First-half standings:

	W.	L.
Eldbrooke M. E.	11	0
Trinity M. E.	8	3
Mount Vernon M. E.	8	3
United Brethren	8	3
Kenilworth Pres.	7	4

Reno Divorce Dropped by Canadian Wife to Save Olympic Status

Reno, Nev., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—So that she may compete for Canada in the coming Olympic games, Ethel Hannah Catherwood, noted Canadian woman athlete, has temporarily abandoned plans for a Reno divorce from James McLaren, the young bank clerk she married secretly at Toronto in 1929.

Wayne T. Wilson, her attorney, said today some question had arisen over whether Miss Catherwood could compete under the Canadian flag after testifying in divorce court that Reno, Nev., was her legal residence. Wilson said the Olympic games committee had been asked for a ruling, but that both he and Miss Catherwood considered it unlikely that they would take favorable action.

Miss Catherwood now is in San Francisco, where she recently announced that after she procured her divorce she intended to wed Byron Mitchell, socially prominent there.

BAER FACES LEVINSKY TONIGHT

Two Maulers Meet at Garden With Betting Held Even.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28 (U.P.).—Betting is even on tomorrow night's scheduled ten-round fight between King Levinsky Chicago heavyweight, and Max Baer, of California at Madison Square Garden.

J. S. Fried, Wall street betting commissioner, announced the betting odds tonight, but predicted that Chicago's fish peddler might be a 6-to-5 favorite at bout-time if more Levinsky money came into the market.

The ticket sale for the bout has been unusually heavy; more than 15,000 persons will attend, Garden officials stated.

Both men are hard hitters, continuous maulers and tough as mules. Neither has ever been knocked out in a professional bout. Both are young: Baer, 22, and Levinsky, 21.

Baer Has 10-Pound Advantage

Baer, with his 202 pounds, will have a 10-pound weight advantage over the Chicagoan. Moreover, the California fighter is reputed to have the hardest short right jolt among present-day heavyweights. But Levinsky is a tireless, rip-slashing swinger from gong to gong. He relishes a stand-up fighter like Baer one who will trade punches with him.

The winner of the match will meet the victor of next week's Ernie Schaaf-Paolino Uzcudun fight, for the privilege of being alternate for Jack Sharkey in the Schmeling title bout in June.

Each is ertain of victory, confident because of recent triumphs. Baer recently defeated Arthur De Kuh, Jose Santa, Johnny Risko and Les Kennedy. Levinsky has just emerged from a victory over Uzcudun, after beating Tommy Loughran and almost beating Primo Carnera.

In the 10-round semifinal, Charley Retzlaff, Duluth heavyweight, meets Joe Woods, of Michigan.

The Board of Education of the United Lutheran Church in America intends to see that there is no subsidizing of athletes in schools the church controls.

A resolution to that effect was passed yesterday at the end of a board meeting presided over by its president, the Rev. H. R. Gold, of New Rochelle, N. Y.

Brooklyn Brew Brewing On High-Speed Schedule For Hack Wilson Pageant

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28. — Having acquired Hack Wilson for their ball club, the citizens of Brooklyn are looking forward to elaborate inauguration ceremonies on the occasion of his visit to Flatbush next week to sign his contract to play with the Daffiness Boys.

Already the Brooklyn breweries, which have ben operating on a reduced schedule of 24 hours a day because of the depression, have been placed on a schedule of 48 hours a day to meet the demand for ceremonial brew wit which to lubricate the festivities. The brewers were able to do this merely by doubling their staffs of malsters, hopsters, tapsters, bungsters and gangsters, and diplomatic negotiations have begun looking toward the temporary suspension of the Brooklyn protective tariff against New York beer to guard against an embarassing lack on inauguration day.

Inferior Chicago Brew Caused Slump

Confidence is felt that in his new surroundings Mr. Wilson will be able to resume the production of home runs and win a pennant for the Daffness Boys in 1932. The citizens of Brooklyn are proud of their brew and insist Wilson's slump last year never would have occurred if he had been based on Flatbush instead of Chicago, where the brew is of an inferior quality.

It is, of course, a recognized fact that inferior brew, if taken in minute quantities, say, 25 or 30 seidels before a ball game, and possibly twice as many just before bedtime, is not likely to cause any harm. But the same brew, if taken in beverage quantities, is likely to confuse the vision and the leg-work, resulting in the loss of fly balls in the sun, and also in putouts at first base on hits which otherwise might be good for three bases.

Hack Will Mount Brewery Truck

There seems to be a little dispute just now regarding the order of the march in the inaugural parade to Ebbets Field. Mr. Wilson, himself, will ride in solitary state on a brewery truck, which, of course, will be emblazoned with the name of a milk company, according to the local law, but this truck will be placed well back from the head of the procession, for dramatic suspense.

The misunderstanding has to do with the desire of the prohibition agents and the sea forces to lead the parade. However, Brooklyn, like the British Isles, is very insular, with a slogan "Buy Brooklyn," and imports very little merchandise from foreign breweries. Therefore, it seems likely that the land forces will be placed at the head of the parade, marching with their tincups, under a banner bearing their corps motto: "See Me."

Next in line, according to the tentative arrangements, will come Mr. Abe (Single-Tooth) Yager, the old press agent for Humbert Fugazy's series of bigger and better superarenas, which would have housed championship prize fights, airplane meets, international yacht races, Florida hurricanes, Johnstown floods

Virginia Ring Star Shifts Classes

Bobby Goldstein Will Move Up Into Lightweight Division.

Spiker May Fight as Featherweight in V. P. I. Match.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Jan. 28.—Johnny La Rowe, Virginia's boxing coach, has decided to move Bobby Goldstein, District boy, who is Southern Conference featherweight champion, up into the lightweight class when the Cavaliers meet V. P. I. in Blacksburg on Saturday night.

Tom Fishburne, who has broken even in his first two varsity bouts, needs to be rested. Goldstein is anxious to have a test of his skill in the 135-pound division. If he goes into the Olympic tryouts, as he expects to do, it will have to be in the lightweight class.

Spiker Will Take on Towler

Frank Spiker, of Dormont, Pa., who was shaded in a four-round bout against Duke, will be Virginia's entry against the veteran Bill Towler, V. P. I. featherweight.

Many Cavalier supporters will probably make the trip to Blackburg to see the varsity and first-year ring teams in action against the Gobblers.

Virginia swimming teams, in both varsity and first year classes, have their first contests of the season this week. The first year natators go to Augusta Military Academy for a tank meet Friday, while the regulars start off at home Saturday night against the Richmond Y. M. C. A.

Coach Gordon Peyton does not expect the varsity swimming combination will be as strong as the one last year, when only one meet was lost to a Southern team. He is uncertain as to what the younger men will do in competition.

Capt. Lampton to Swim in Dashes

Capt. Lampton, who will swim in the dashes; Sayer and Tarplee, who finished one and two in every 440 race last year, and Fishburne and McMurtrie, divers, are veterans from the 1931 team. Marston, Pechin, Sharman and Bloomenthal have come up from last year's undefeated first-year team.

In Coach Peyton's opinion, the best of the first-year tank men are Graveley, Prince, Morse and Call. He expects these young charges to do well in individual events, but he fears that the team as a whole will lack balance.

Virginia Must Improve To Beat V. P. I. Tonight

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Jan. 28.—Virginia basket ball fans are expressing the hope that the Cavalier quint may regain its stride by tomorrow night when Virginia Polytechnic Institute comes to the Memorial Gymnasium, and may continue in form next week against St. John's, North Carolina State and Ohio State.

Coach Tebell has told his charges that they'll bow to V. P. I. in the return game tomorrow night unless they improve in all departments of play. In Blacksburg last Monday night the Cavaliers gained a 35-to-24 victory over the Gobblers, but they accomplished this by playing a much faster game than they did at home last night.

Shooting from the free throw line was one of the outstanding weaknesses of the Virginians in their latest game. Ten attempts to convert were missed, more than were let slip in the two previous games together.

Staunton Cadets Win In Thrilling Game, 23-22

Special to The Washington Post.

Woodberry Forest, Va., Jan. 28.—In a thrilling contest in which the outcome remained in doubt until the final whistle, the crack Staunton Military Academy quintet nosed out Woodberry Forest on the local court by a 23-22 count. The Cadets found the Orange team's defense too strong for them and were forced to rely upon the long-range shooting of Male, Griffith and Delprete which accounted for 10 of their points.

The lead changed hands several times with neither team in front at any time by a margin greater than 3 points. A field goal by Stouck and foul shot by Griffith in the closing moments of play turned the tide in favor of the visitors. Capt. Harman and Monsted were outstanding for Woodberry.

Landis, Here, Hears 4 Players' Appeals

Dingler, D. C. Sandlot Outfielder, Makes Claim Against Youngstown.

Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball czar, spent a busy day in Washington yesterday, granting hearings on appeals of rulings of the National Board of Minor Leagues. Four cases were heard at the session at the Willard. One involved the veteran, Dick Hoblitzel, and the Charleston (W. Va.) Club, while the Youngstown Club, formerly representing Hagerstown, was the defendant against three young players—Outfielder Charlie Dingler, a Washington boy; Infielder James Boswell, and Pitcher Jimmy Wallach. Clark Griffith, president of the Nationals, was a witness for Owner Joe Cambria, of Youngstown, at the hearing. Dingler claims the club owes him two months' salary.

Commissioner Landis, who will not make his rulings until his return to Chicago early next week, is scheduled to hear more appeals in Philadelphia today and in New York tomorrow.

BATTALINO'S FINE IS PUT AT $5,000

Italian Also Banned by N.B.A.; Hearing Clears Miller.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—A $5,000 fine and indefinite suspension were imposed by the Cincinnati Boxing Commission on Christopher ("Bat") Battalino, Hartford, Conn., featherweight, for his "no contest" match with Freddie Miller, Cincinnati southpaw here last night.

The commission heard all parties today. The members gave Miller a clean record and said he would be paid for three rounds, the distance the fighters had gone when Referee Lou Bauman stopped the milling on the grounds Battalino was not trying. Miller's claim to the title, however, was not allowed.

The 2,015 persons who paid to see the fight billed as for the title are to be reimbursed in full, and James Shevlin, who promoted the scrap for the Fair Play Athletic Club, will suffer no loss. The money is to come out of Battalino's fine.

Suspension Covers Wide Territory

The Hartford fighter's suspension will be effective in all States affiliated with the National Boxing Association, but, the Cincinnati commission said, will not affect matches Battalino may have contracted for previously.

Battalino's title was taken from him before the fight when he failed to weigh in under the featherweight limit of 126 pounds, but the commission ruled Miller would be declared champion if he won. The outcome vacated the title.

Miller told the commissioners he did his best and asked them to reverse Bauman's decision.

Anticipating a penalty, Battalino's manager, Hy Mailey, told commissioners Battalino would pay any fine.

Shortly before Malley spoke, Battalino offered to pay all expenses incurred in promoting the Miller fight, providing money was refunded ticket purchasers.

N. B. A. to Back Cincinnati

The National Boxing Commission, through its president, Gen. John V. Clinnin, Chicago, said any action taken against Battalino or Miller by the Cincinnati commission would be supported.

Battalino not only dropped his featherweight title for failure to make the class weight, 126 pounds, but lost a $1,000 weight forfeit he posted. At the commission's investigation late today into what they called the three-round farce, Bauman said Battalino was not giving his best effort. Battalino, defending himself, told the commissioners he weighed 140 pounds upon arrival here a week ago and that he sapped his strength in a futile attempt to reduce to the featherweight limit.

WRESTLERS FEATURE AT NAVY

Middie - Tufts Bouts to Headline Card Tomorrow.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 28.—Wrestling bouts again will top the week-end card of athletic events at the Naval Academy. The Middie grapplers will go to the mat with the representatives of Tufts College of Massachusetts. The New Englanders are newcomers on Navy's schedule, and little is known here of their strength this season.

The Tars have a well-balanced team this year and appear to be in for a very successful season. Their decisive victory over Lehigh, Eastern intercollegiate champions, in the opening match here last Saturday served notice that they will make a bid for top mat honors among colleges along the Eastern seaboard.

Navy, however, does not belong to the Intercollegiate Wrestling Association, and whatever its record in dual competitions might be it could not be rated at the top of the heap except from the standpoint of an outsider.

Aside from the wrestling match, the sport card for Saturday calls for basket ball between the Navy varsity and Western Maryland College, the Plebes against Dean Academy of Franklin, Mass., and fencing with the Penn Athletic Club.

Pinetzki Pins Freeman by Body Slam

Picks Up Gothamite, Ends Bout Quickly in Rough Play.

Kley, Contortionist, Tosses Williams in Semifinal.

LEO PINETZKI, Poland's 6-foot-8 contribution to the hilariousness of American rassling, mopped up the Washington Auditorium last night with his opponent, Herbie Freeman, as 4,500 enthusiasts roared in approval. It took the Polish behemoth but fixe minutes to render Freeman null and void for the night, but the faithful are still laughing about it today.

Friend Freeman, once the Jewish title claimant, essayed roughing it with lil' Leo and then the Pole, who does his grunting in the native tongue with gesticulations that need no interpreter, hauled off and sideswiped his tormentor with a pair of apish arms.

Next Pinetzki went to thinking, and, after the smoke of burning hair had cleared, initiated a series of tosses to various parts of the arena with Freeman's body in his huge paws. Poor Herbie was only human, so Leo won his second bout in Washington. The name for the "holt" was a body slam.

In the semifinal Sandor Szabo, handsome Hungarian, defeated Scotty McDougal after 30 agonizing minutes, while in another scuffle productive of much action Fritz Kley, German substitute for Sammy Stein, tossed Cy Williams. Kley proved a contortionist and acrobat as well as wrestler with a number of amazing stunts with which he freed himself with consummate ease from Williams' numerous straight holds.

Nats Buy Maple, Youthful Catcher

Bloomington Star Is Rated Big League Material; Boyle Is Signed.

Howard Maple, 21-year-old catcher, has been purchased from the Bloomington Three-Eye League Club by the Nationals, President Clark Griffith announced yesterday. According to the Nat leader, Maple is a comer who has an excellent chance of making good under the big tent.

Maple is only one year away from the sandlots, but showed to such advantage last season that he earned the first-string job. He performed in 99 games, batting at a .288 clip. He is a rangy fellow, 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighing about 165 pounds.

Ralph Boyle, outfielder, obtained from the Baltimore Orioles at the tag end of last season, signed his 1932 contract with the Nats, President Clark Griffith announced yesterday.

Boyle is the eleventh of the squad of 26 Nats to accept terms for next season. He was retained in preference to Johnny Gill, who also came from the Orioles in the deal for Bartee Jordan and "Pinky" Hargrave. Gill has been sent on option to Chattanooga.

LADY BROADCAST, FAVORITE, SCORES IN HIALEAH FEATURE

DancingMack Half-Length Behind

Aldershot Is Third; Allen Rides Two Winners.

My Sweets, Crystal Prince Victors at New Orleans.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Jan. 28 (A. P.).—Taking all the worst of a straggling start, the good Western mare, Lady Broadcast, proved much the best in winning the Pan-American Purse, 1 mile feature, here this afternoon. Although the H. M. Woolf standard bearer had only a half length advantage over Dancing Mack at the finish, she was in hand and might have won by a longer margin had Charlie Allen elected to put her under real pressure. Incidentally, it was Allen's second winner of the day. He is the boy who fell from his mount, Dyak, after winning yesterday, due to exhaustion from making weight.

Third money was garnered by Aldershot, a son of Man o' War which apparently is back in top form. The winner was favorite, paying $3.40. She covered the 8 furlongs in 1:37 4-5 before another large crowd.

Dancing Mack, the speed of the field, got a step at the start and led through the backstretch with Chatford forcing the fast pace. Lady Broadcast worked her way up gradually from her slow beginning, while Aldershot was badly outrun and trailed the field. At the far turn, Lady Broadcast moved up ominously but Dancing Mack was sticking tenaciously to his task. Chatford stopped all over after straightening out for the stretch drive and Lady Broadcast crept up to provide another close finish for the crowd. Allen got the favorite to the front and did not need to drive his mount. Aldershot closed very fast in the last quarter mile to overtake John F for the show.

My Sweets Finally Wins at New Orleans

New Orleans, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—My Sweets, a 4-year-old filly which has finished out of the money only twice in her twelve winter races, and Crystal Prince, a nonwinner over the winter turf, divided honors in the twin feature events at the Fair Grounds today.

My Sweets, carrying the silks of James Poland, won her third race since the New Orleans season opened in accounting for the Port Barre Purse, a 6-furlong sprint limited to fillies and mares. Crystal Prince, from Foley and Thompson's barns, outgamed a band of 3-year-olds in the Olympia Purse, also decided over six furlongs.

My Sweets was much the best of her field, defeating E. F. Prichard's Weideleen by two lengths in 1:14 3-5 Crystal Prince ran the six furlongs in the same time but just managed to beat A. B. Letellier's Sazerac by a neck with J. J. Robinson's highly regarded Flying Don third.

Crystal Prince paid $20.80 for a $2 mutuel while My Sweets returned $6.20 for a similar priced ticket.

Holders of daily double tickets on Noah's Pride and Jeanne Wachs combination received $12.20 for $2.

Bather Scores Again at Havana

Havana, Cuba, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Bather, winner of one of two Cuban starts and second in the other, won the $2,500 Jose Marti Handicap at Oriental Park today. The race was named for the Cuban hero of the Spanish-American War.

With the capacity of the beautiful race course taxed to capacity, Bather, which races for W. M. Ingram, staged a great stretch drive to defeat Mrs. Emil Denemark's Burning Up. S. Friedlan's Fortunate Youth was third. In the also rans were high-class performers as Thistle Fyrn, Jack Collins, Patricia Marian and Blue Day.

Blue Day, Fortunate Youth and Burning Up were away in front of the field. Rounding the first turn, Jockey Curran took Bather wide to escape any possible interference. He held the 6-year-old gelding off the pace until the turn for home and then slowly began to close ground, getting up in the final strides.

Well played in both orals and mutuels, Bather paid 2 to 1. He ran the one and one-sixteenth miles in 1:44 4-5.

LUCILLE K. went to the front with a rush and opened up a commanding lead, bore over to inside rail going to furlong pole, but was clear at the time. MEANY ran straight and true, fought it out with DUSKY DAME and always held latter safe. DUSKY DAME broke from outside the stalls. DARK WAR, handled a lot at post, was very fractious and repeatedly broke through the barrier.

Robertson rated BOB'S PLAY along under slight restraint until straightened out in home stretch, where he moved up and easily disposed of MUFF, faltered in final strides and had to be hard ridden to stall off ATHOL. Latter finished in resolute fashion and was gradually wearing the winner down. TANTALIZING raced on the outside of leaders all the way. MUFF collapsed when BOB'S PLAY disposed of her.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:54. Off at 3:55. Winner, C. E. LOVE OFFERING, breaking rapidly, forced a fast early pace and drew away rounding the far turn, bore over and shut MAE SWEEP off and was driving to the limit to last long enough. MAE SWEEP was going through at turn out of back stretch, where she met with interference, closed full of courage and would have beaten the winner in another stride. PORT HARLEM had a rough trip. She was closing at end. NONANA was taken up at start.

FIFTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,300; allowances. Pan-American Purse. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start poor. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:22. Off at 4:29. Winner, Herbert M. She was going away at end. DANCING MACK broke rapidly and hugged the rail entire journey. ALDERSHOT closed with a burst of speed on the outside and would have beaten DANCING MACK in another stride. JOHN F was eased up. MARTIS, on the outside of the leaders all down the back stretch.

NANSEN, on the outside of leaders in run down back stretch, cut across to inside entering home stretch, wore down the tiring MISS TULSA last furlong and outfinished her at end. MISS TULSA forced a rapid pace until leaving the far turn, where she went to front, drew away at top of home stretch, but had nothing left when winner challenged. SHIVA and COMMON were used up in early stages.

FETISH, showing big improvement, had good speed, but tired in final quarter mile, had little contention for the place. NOINE ran a good race, was outrun early, but closed in big gap. LIGHT AIRe, kept close to pace for six furlongs, tired thereafter and lost show in last stride. FRANCES ST. L. closed fast after being outrun.

BEER BEING BREWED IN BROOKLYN

City's Sea Forces to Hail Signing of Hack Wilson.

Forget Scenes Of His Sites

This flaw was Mr. Fugazy's forgetfulness. He was always forgetting where his site was supposed to be and consequently never showed up for any of the numerous ground-breaking ceremonies which Mr. Yager publicized in the newspapers. Several times he showed up at other people's vacant lots and broke the wrong ground, but, of course, that did not count, and once he broke ground in Central Park, only to be driven off by a policeman, who said he could not build an arena there without an O. K. from the district leader. Obviously, it is impossible to build a super-arena unless ground is first broken, and consequently none of Mr. Fugazy's was ever built. But he did have the plans for them, and the fact that his plans later were identified as the plans of the Arkansas State Capitol seems entirely immaterial.

Mr. Yager at last reports was no longer press agent for Mr. Fugazy, but was managing a lady prize fighter and hurling challenges to any lady in the world to meet his lady.

Outside the Ring, She's Sweet

"My lady is just a fighting fool," Mr. Yager insisted, "but outside the ring you would never take her for a fighter at all. She has the sweetest little husband at home that you ever saw and treats him gently at all times. And yet last week she fight (sic) a big, fat blonde at a stag party over in Newark and knocked her bow-legged with a punch."

Aside from his intense Brooklyn-ness, Mr. Yager has another qualification which clearly entitles him to an advanded position in the Hack Wilson inauguration ceremonies. With his one tooth Mr. Yager has been subsisting on a liquid diet for some years, and he is a living, healthy testimonial to the brews of Brooklyn, which require no chewing.

Fugazy and Blueprints To Join Parade

Mr. Fugazy also will march in a distinguished position, carrying a large roll of blueprints, borrowed from the Empire State Building, and his gilded spade. Arriving at the ballyard, he will break ground in right field, where Mr. Wilson will play ball next summer, and plant a row of hops.

The foremost beer consumers of the Daffiness Boys will then engage in a beer-drinking contest, some of them from scratch, others with handicaps ranging from one pail to one half-barrel, according to their official ratings, and, as the crowning feat, Mr. Wilson will dive into a vat of beer and drink himself out, against time. Following this, the name of the Daffiness Boys will be formally changed from the Robins to the Tanks. The public ceremonies concluded, the official party will then repair to a beer store and drink some beer.

GOVERNMENT LOOP CARD.

The Interior Department and Bureau of Investigation quintets will clash in the first game of a Government League double-header to be played tonight in the Bolling Field gym. This game will get under way at 8 o'clock. An hour later Bolling Field will try conclusions with the Union Printers.

Phar Lap Slated to Meet East's Best Unless Beaten

Australian Wonder Horse Faces Clash With Dr. Freeland and Plucky Play Feb. 21 at Agua Caliente.

By ORLO ROBERTSON.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—An international race, bringing together Phar Lap, the wonder horse from Australia; Twenty Grand and Mate, is in the making as the Australian champion prepares for his North American debut in the $10,000 special race at Agua Caliente February 21.

David J. Davis, part owner of Phar Lap, is considering bringing him East for a crack at America's 3-year-old cochampions of last year. Much depends, however, on Phar Lap's showing against Dr. Freeland, Plucky Play and Marine in the special race and in the $50,000 Agua Caliente March 20.

Arlington Park Offers Three Stakes

Being a gelding, Phar Lap is not eligible for the Saratoga Cup and the Jockey Club Gold Cup at Belmont, but Arlington Park, Chicago, offers three attractive purses for older horses during its July meeting. The three stakes—the Stars and Stripes, the Arlington Handicap and the Arlington Cup—each gross in excess of $20,000. The fall meetings in Chicago and Maryland also are full of rich events in which Phar Lap could race.

Twenty Grand, now in winter quarters at Mrs. Payne Whitney's Red Bank, N. J., farm, will make his 1932 debut in the Stars and Stripes July 4. A. C. Bostwick has announced Mate will run in all of the important handicap events.

Phar Lap, meanwhile, faces strong opposition in the West. At Agua Caliente the foreign thoroughbred will race among others, Dr. Freeland, winner of the 1929 Preakness. The latter now races for Benny Creech.

Plucky Play, Marine Also to be Met

There is also Plucky Play, which defeated Sun Beau, the world's leading money winner, twice last year. The American triumvirate is completed by Kenneth Dawes' Marine, the best offspring of Man o' War compaigning today and ruler of the Canadian turf last year.

Phar Lap was 5 years old August 1, under Australian racing rules, and since that time has won six consecutive races and gone unplaced in the Melbourne Cup, in which he was asked to pack 130 pounds.

Purchased as a yearling for $800, he has won 36 of his 50 starts and $282,200. He is shooting at Sun Beau's record of $376,744.

—Hialeah Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

HIALEAH PARK, Miami, Fla., Jan. 28.—Speed will be the order in the running tomorrow at Hialeah Park of the McKinley Claiming Handicap at 7 furlongs. This is the feature race at the Miami track. THE HEATHEN, which carries top impost, should have another trial. He was third in his last race to Panetian, which was run in less than 1:12. THE GEN is the next in ranking and may improve over his last effort with lighter impost. MERIDIAN QUEEN is at her best now, and should be close to the leaders.

FIRST RACE—GLENSIDE should run back to his winning race against Angry Plume in the opener, which would make him an easy winner. DOUBLE HEART is the only danger. He has plenty of speed and is a recent winner. CALGARY KAY never ran better than this winter and should hold the others safe.

SECOND RACE—On public form of a limited kind, ROYAL PURCHASE should be the favorite and is selected to win. She was in the money in her two last starts. MINTWINA, which finished second to Wise Anne last week, should be the contender. LADY BRACADALE, which gave great promise at Tropical Park, is the most probable third.

THIRD RACE—WAR SAINT is selected to win. His racing is spotted. He runs well for a while and then fails to reflect consistency. MIKE CAREY is overdue, was backed to odds-on twice at Tropical Park, but has done little at Hialeah Park. On class, he is the contender. WAVE TOP may improve.

FOURTH RACE—JAMBALAYA will be hard to beat in the fourth and has the class of the field, but may not be ready. MY PURCHASE is in top form. MAREVE raced well last season and should hold the field safe for third money.

SIXTH RACE—REGULA BADDUN seems best. This High Time gelding won last week for H. C. Phipps over Bay Angon and other fast ones, but lost in his last start. Kelsay will ride. ALLENFERN, after a rest since last fall, should be the contender and, if at top form, is very fast. TROMBONE won Monday from Southco and is dangerous.

SEVENTH RACE—PUTTER is selected. TYPHOON will be well backed against the speedy mare, and there should be a close finish. If PUTTER runs up to her workouts or back to Maryland form, she would win. TYPHOON'S last two races have been below his best form. SUN MASK has the most early speed of this field, but may tire at the distance.

STOCK MARKET SAGS IN SHIFTING TRENDS

Loss Is Moderate as News Leaves Financial Issues Still Unchanged.

New York, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Stocks see-sawed uncertainly today, trying to make the best of the inconclusive news that came to hand during trading hours.

Late selling of the rails unsettled the general list, which had been steadying under a dull sag around the noon hour. Trading in the forenoon proceeded at the slowest pace of the past several months, but activity then picked up and sales for the day amounted to 1,115,990 shares.

Net losses were moderate, averaging just under a point for the 90 issues used in the averages. Some rails, notably New York Central, Union Pacific, Santa Fe and Southern Pacific, were down a point or more. American Telephone was still heavy, off 2⅝ at the worst and 1¾ net. Auburn sagged 4. A number of preferred shares reacted rather substantially, emphasizing the thin market which has long existed for such stocks.

Attention Focused on Steel.

Attention was focused on Bethlehem Steel because of its directors' meeting late in the day. This steel issue dropped to a new low, anticipating the dividend omission, which was hardly a surprise to Wall street. The preferred, active for the first time this week, lost 6 and then rallied a point from the bottom. General Electric and Standard Oil of New Jersey also established new minimums, the former dipping under 20, although it finished unchanged at 20½.

United States Steel went half a point under Wednesday's low and closed with a major fractional loss. General Motors, whose board meets for dividend action soon, was soggy.

The market closed without final word on the outcome of the railroad wage negotiations and was kept busy, especially during the afternoon, trying to guess whether a settlement had been reached. December earnings statements indicated that numerous carriers were failing to cover fixed charges; nevertheless, there was little volume to the selling, for speculative circles were unwilling to take too gloomy a view pending the decision at Chicago.

New Financing Impression.

A favorable impression has been created in the financial community by the reception given to new financing. Investment banking houses report that issues now being placed have been taken up easily and that some of the buying has come from investment sources.

The bank's weekly statement again suggested that there is to be no hurry over the easy money program. Discounts were up for the system, but bill purchases declined and Government security holdings were unchanged. Currency circulation showed a drop of $24,000,000, which was encouraging. Contraction from the holiday period has so far been considerably slower than normal.

Steel executives point out that their industry is waiting for signs of improvement among its chief customers, the railroads, the automobile manufacturers, construction and agriculture. Until demand and prices strengthen, times will be lean in the steel business. Bethlehem's January has not been as good as its December.

BOND PRICES LOWER, DESPITE LIGHT GAINS

Federal Issues Are Firm Throughout Session; Loss Is Half Point.

New York, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Strength in United States Government securities was the only ray of sunshine that could be detected in today's overcast bond market.

While the Federal loans were firm during the entire session, an erroneous report that the Federal reserve discount rate might be lowered in the afternoon brought a flurry of buying and prices of the treasuries advanced around a point. There was a slight reaction in this section near the close, but substantial portions of the gains were retained.

The railway mortgages started the day on an ascending plane and some of the lower-priced liens were in demand at a point or more advance. There was a wave of selling in the last few minutes of trading, however, and the average for 20 of the principal carriers ended the day 0.4 of a point lower.

The utilities staged a somewhat discouraging performance and generally registered the largest losses of the session. Communications and gas and electric bonds were especially subjected to pressure. The weakness of this section was variously attributed to European liquidation and to new financing plans of some of the larger corporations. At the same time a new issue of $25,000,000 of New York Edison Co. 5s was sold in a few hours.

There was a mixed trend in the foreign department. Australian loans were weak and Argentine liens sagged fractionally. Brazil Government 8s lost 4½ points, Colombia Mortgage Bank 6½s were off 4 and Japanese issues dropped from 1 to 5¾ points on reports of growing Asiatic troubles. German bonds were easy, as were British 5½s.

Sales for the day totalled $10,775,000 and the average for 60 corporate loans dropped one-half point.

STORY OF KIDNAPING SCOUTED BY POLICE

robe Is Continued, Despite Victim's Request for No Further Inquiry.

South Bend., Ind., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—moring the desire of Howard A. oolverton, South Bend business an, that there be no further in-iry made into his story of being ndaped and of his sudden return, y and county authorities tonight essed separate investigations.

Adding to the complexity of the in-iry was a statement by Otto Bar-s, conductor of the South Bend terurban on which Woolverton said returned to South Bend last night. rtels told a South Bend newspaper did not remember any person rresponding to photographs of oolverton having entered the car at ichigan City.

May Go to Grand Jury.

Woolverton had said he was released his kidnapers on the outskirts of ichigan City, and that he returned his home here on the interurban. Samuel P. Schwartz, St. Joseph unty prosecuting attorney, said he ould question Woolverton and, if cte warranted, would place the mat-before the grand jury Monday.

Police Chief John B. Kuespert, harting over what he termed the k of cooperation of the Woolverton mily with his department, said the ct that the man had returned home e last night unharmed and re-rting that he had not paid any of e $50,000 ransom demanded, would t halt his investigation.

Returned 23 Hours Later.

Woolverton, who disappeared late esday night, returned 23 hours ter, saying his abductors had re-ased him in Michigan City, 36 miles ay, and had given him $10.

"There are many confusing details the kidnaping and the return f r. Woolverton," Prosecutor Schwartz id. "I have not inquired et into l the details, but will confer with r. Woolverton and other members his family.

"If I am unable to obtain satisfac-ry explanation of all angles of the se from this procedure, I will place e matter before the grand jury."

chall's Choice Gets Bench Nomination

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday named atthew M. Joyce, of Minneapolis, to Federal judge for the District of innesota. Joyce was supported by nator Schall (Republican), of Min-sota, who engaged last summer in public controversy with the Presi-nt and Attorney General Mitchell hen both declined to support a can-date mentioned by him for a sim-ar judgeship.

The blind senator recently informed e Chief Executive that if Federal istrict Judge Sandorn was advanced the circuit bench and Joyce ap-inted in his place he would with-raw his objection to Senate confirma-on of the administration's appointee r the other judgeship, Gunnar ordbye.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 178

National Photo.

THE inaugural parade of William Howard Taft, March 4, 1913, is depicted above.

Because of the blinding snowstorm, howling winds, and low temperatures, Mr. Taft departed from the usual custom of an outdoor ceremony and took the oath of office in the Senate chamber, with Chief Justice Fuller officiating. Andrew Jackson and Taft were the only two forced to take the vow of allegiance indoors.

President Roosevelt, Mr. Taft, Senators Philander Knox and Henry Cabot Lodge rode to the Capitol in a closed carriage, but after the ceremonies President and Mrs. Taft rode up the avenue in an open carriage, as is shown above.

The Tafts had been the guests of the Roosevelts the night of March 3, and at breakfast the next morning, it is said that Mr. Taft, after taking a rueful survey of the snowbound city, remarked to the President, facetiously, "I knew it would be a cold day when I became President," to which the President responded, "I knew there would be a blizzard clear up to the minute I went out of office."

Ten inches of snow fell from 8 o'clock Wednesday night until noon Thursday, March 4, and the labors of 6,000 men with shovels was required to clear the route of the procession. It was estimated that 58,500 tons of snow were removed, and 18,000 pounds of sand was used to sprinkle the Avenue.

Note the old-time automobiles and the mounted police. The postoffice may be seen on the right and Poli's is in the right-hand corner.

Postoffice Plans Washington Cachet

Special Stamp to Be Put on Letters February 22 at Mount Vernon.

Philatelists will be provided with another "banner day" by the bicentennial celebration, according to the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

In cooperation with the Postoffice Department, arrangements are being made to have a special cachet with which letters mailed at the Mount Vernon Postoffice will be stamped on February 22 with a likeness of the Wakefield home, and will bear the inscription "1732-1932." The issue will be for one day only.

The cachet is not a cancellation, but an additional stamp to be placed on covers for February 22 and the decision for the postmark at Mount Vernon was reached because there is no postoffice at Wakefield, Sussex County, Va.

BOND PRICES LOWER, DESPITE LIGHT GAINS

Federal Issues Are Firm Throughout Session; Loss Is Half Point.

New York, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Strength in United States Government securities was the only ray of sunshine that could be detected in today's overcast bond market.

While the Federal loans were firm during the entire session, an erroneous report that the Federal reserve discount rate might be lowered in the afternoon brought a flurry of buying and prices of the treasuries advanced around a point. There was a slight reaction in this section near the close, but substantial portions of the gains were retained.

The railway mortgages started the day on an asending plane and some of the lower-priced liens were in demand at a point or more advance. There was a wave of selling in the last few minutes of trading, however, and the average for 20 of the principal carriers ended the day 0.4 of a point lower.

The utilities staged a somewhat discouraging performance and generally registered the largest losses of the session. Communications and gas and electric bonds were especially subjected to pressure. The weakness of this section was variously attributed to European liquidation and to new financing plans of some of the larger corporations. At the same time a new issue of $25,000,000 of New York Edison Co. 5s was sold in a few hours.

There was a mixed trend in the foreign department. Australian loans were weak and Argentine liens sagged fractionally. Brazil Government 8s lost 4⅛ points, Colombia Mortgage Bank 6½s were off 4 and Japanese issues dropped from 1 to 5¾ points on reports of growing Asiatic troubles. German bonds were easy, as were British 5½s.

Sales for the day totalled $10,775,000 and the average for 60 corporate loans dropped one-half point.

STORY OF KIDNAPING SCOUTED BY POLICE

robe Is Continued, Despite Victim's Request for No Further Inquiry.

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 28 (A.P.)—noring the desire of Howard A. oolverton, South Bend business an, that there be no further in-iry made into his story of being ndaped and of his sudden return, y and county authorities tonight essed separate investigations.

Adding to the complexity of the in-ary was a statement by Otto Bar-s, conductor of the South Bend terurban on which Woolverton said returned to South Bend last night. rtels told a South Bend newspaper did not remember any person rresponding to photographs of oolverton having entered the car at ichigan City.

May Go to Grand Jury.

Woolverton had said he was released his kidnapers on the outskirts of ichigan City, and that he returned his home here on the interurban. Samuel P. Schwartz, St. Joseph ounty prosecuting attorney, said he ould question Woolverton and, if cts warranted, would place the mat-r before the grand jury Monday.

Police Chief John B. Kuespert, arting over what he termed the ck of cooperation of the Woolverton mily with his department, said the ct that the man had returned home e last night unharmed and re-rting that he had not paid any of e $50,000 ransom demanded, would t halt his investigation.

Returned 23 Hours Later.

Woolverton, who disappeared late uesday night, returned 23 hours ter, saying his abductors had re-ased him in Michigan City, 36 miles way, and had given him $10.

"There are many confusing details the kidnaping and the return f r. Woolverton," Prosecutor Schwartz id. "I have not inquired yet into l the details, but will confer with r. Woolverton and other members his family.

"If I am unable to obtain satisfac-ry explanation of all angles of the se from this procedure, I will place e matter before the grand jury."

chall's Choice Gets Bench Nomination

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday named atthew M. Joyce, of Minneapolis, to Federal judge for the District of innesota. Joyce was supported by nator Schall (Republican), of Min-esota, who engaged last summer in public controversy with the Presi-nt and Attorney General Mitchell hen both declined to support a can-date mentioned by him for a sim-r judgeship.

The blind senator recently informed e Chief Executive that if Federal istrict Judge Sandorn was advanced the circuit bench and Joyce ap-inted in his place he would with-raw his objection to Senate confirma-on of the administration's appointee r the other judgeship, Gunnar ordbye.

National Photo.

THE inaugural parade of William Howard Taft, March 4, 1913, is depicted above.

Because of the blinding snowstorm, howling winds, and low temperatures, Mr. Taft departed from the usual custom of an outdoor ceremony and took the oath of office in the Senate chamber, with Chief Justice Fuller officiating. Andrew Jackson and Taft were the only two forced to take the vow of allegiance indoors.

President Roosevelt, Mr. Taft, Senators Philander Knox and Henry Cabot Lodge rode to the Capitol in a closed carriage, but after the ceremonies President and Mrs. Taft rode up the avenue in an open carriage, as is shown above.

The Tafts had been the guests of the Roosevelts the night of March 3, and at breakfast the next morning, it is said that Mr. Taft, after taking a rueful survey of the snowbound city, remarked to the President, facetiously, "I knew it would be a cold day when I became President," to which the President responded, "I knew there would be a blizzard clear up to the minute I went out of office."

Ten inches of snow fell from 8 o'clock Wednesday night until noon Thursday, March 4, and the labors of 6,000 men with shovels was required to clear the route of the procession. It was estimated that 58,500 tons of snow were removed, and 18,000 pounds of sand was used to sprinkle the Avenue.

Note the old-time automobiles and the mounted police. The postoffice may be seen on the right and Poli's is in the right-hand corner.

Special Stamp to Be Put on Letters February 22 at Mount Vernon.

Philatelists will be provided with another "banner day" by the bicentennial celebration, according to the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

In cooperation with the Postoffice Department, arrangements are being made to have a special cachet with which letters mailed at the Mount Vernon Postoffice will be stamped on February 22 with a likeness of the Wakefield home, and will bear the inscription "1732-1932." The issue will be for one day only.

The cachet is not a cancellation, but an additional stamp to be placed on covers for February 22 and the decision for the postmark at Mount Vernon was reached because there is no postoffice at Wakefield, Sussex County, Va.

JANUARY 29, 1907.

Charles Curtis, the young representative who resigned from the House yesterday, will take the oath of office in the Senate today. He has been elected to fill the unexpired term of Senator Burton, of Kansas.

Representative Lever, of South Carolina, enlivened proceedings in the House with a bitter attack on "Uncle Joe" Cannon, charging the Speaker with using undue influence in several of his recent rulings as to legislation.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

WHERE THERE'S A WILL THERE'S A CROWD.

$75,000,000 ESTATE BRINGS SEVENTY-FIVE LAWYERS TO COURT.—HEADLINE.

COURT—Is the counsel for the contestants here?

Chorus of Voices in Symphonic Volume—Yes, yerroner.

Court (quite startled)—I get the impression of many voices. Is it due to defective acoustics or is the impression correct?

About Fifteen Lawyers—The Court's ears do not deceive him.

Court (still quite puzzled)—Will the lawyers in this case please step forward. (There is a mighty tramp of feet)—Don't crowd, please! Let us have some order! Will the counsel kindly move forward in columns of four?

Voices—Don't shove me! . . . Take your time, fella! . . . Ouch! . . . Get off my feet! . . . Gangway! . . . One side there!

Court—When you all get here will the tall lawyers please stand behind the short ones so the court can see you all without difficulty? Thanks. The clerk will now take your names in alphabetical order.

Clerk—All attorneys whose names begin with A will please give me their full names and . . .

Court—Just a moment. Maybe it would be a good idea to NUMBER them!

Clerk—I think it would avoid confusion.

Court—How about getting some sweaters with numerals on them?

Clerk—I believe it can be arranged.

Court—Excellent! Now, gentlemen, I must confess I don't quite understand the appearance of so many lawyers in this case. How much is the estate worth?

Clerk—Seventy-five million dollars.

Court—That explains everything.

SEVERAL New Voices—Will the Court kindly repeat the amount of money involved?

Court—Seventy-five million dollars.

The New Voices—We should like to be recorded as counsel, too.

Court—For whom?

New Voices—We are not certain at this time.

Court—Have you any clients in this litigation?

New Voices—No, but we intend to dig up some at once.

• • • •

Court (hearing a disturbance in the street)—What's going on outside?

Court Attendant—It's a parade coming down the street, yerroner. It's heading this way. I think it's reinforcements.

Court—Reinforcements for what?

Court Attendant—For the will contestants.

Shut the doors, they're coming thru the windows!
Shut the windows, theyre coming tthrough the doors!
Shut the doors, they're coming thru the windows—
By gosh! They're coming thru the floors!

Court (in despair)—Bar the doors! And post a notice. Further hearings are adjourned.

Lawyers—Where? Where?

Court—TO THE YALE BOWL.

Senator Huey P. Long, arriving at Washington, received callers in his pajamas. The attire would seem peculiarly suited to service in a legislative body.

J. J. Hammell, captain of a New York ferryboat for 40 years, has retired. One of the first things he will do for recreation will be to go on one of those around New York by water cruises.
